Government to Buy Million Cattle from Drouth Areas, Rain Cheers West Today

Work Relief Plans for 50,000 Needy Farmers are Completed; Wheat Rises to Over Dollar a Bushel Mark.

Southern States Get Rain and Much Relief is Felt; Great Cotton Crop Lost.

(By the Associated Press)

Duluth—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace authorized government purchase of up to 1,000,000 cattle to remove them from burned out ranges of north central states.

St. Paul—Works Progress Administrators of Minnesota, Montana, Wyoming and the Dakotas completed work relief plans for 50,000 needy farmers. Rain forecast for upper Mississippi Valley.

Washington — Complete drouth assistance program shaped as resettlement administration estimated 100,000 farm families in the northwest would need aid.

Chicago — Wheat advanced as much as five cents a bushel as alarm over the situation resulted in a buying stampede on both sides of the Atlantic. "Dollar-a-bushel" mark surpassed.

Atlanta—Rains in southern states provide relief.

Rain Aids Program.

Duluth, Minn., July 3 (AP)—Relief in the form of rain and a three-fold program of government aid cheered the drouth-ravaged agricultural sections of the nation today.

Showers fell in southern states and in the Great Lakes region. In many cases they meant the difference between a fair crop and none at all.

Precipitation was forecast for the parched upper Mississippi Valley. But there was no moisture to soften the hardpan prairies of Minnesota and the Dakotas—focal points in a widespread $250,000,000 drouth.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace authorized federal purchase and processing of up to 1,000,000 head of distressed cattle in north central states. Even as he took the action here yesterday, livestock was being shipped from sun seared pastures in the northwest by the trainload. The movement at some centers equalled that of disastrous 1934.

At Washington, officials indicated $5,000,000 would be used in removing cattle from burned out ranges in a joint undertaking by the AAA and the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation. The meat products will be donated to state relief agencies for distribution. It was indicated extensive buying would not be necessary if drenching rains occur in the next fortnight.

New Roads Planned.

Works Progress Administrators in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana and Wyoming completed plans for construction of farm-to-market roads and water conserving dams. They hoped to put the first contingent of an army of 50,000 cropless farmers to work in several days.

In the national capital, President Roosevelt's special drouth committee shaped a general assistance program. Reports to the resettlement administration indicated 100,000 farm families would need aid.

World wide alarm over the situation precipitated a buying stampede on both sides of the Atlantic yesterday. High price records for the season were shattered on the Chicago market by every grain on the list.

December wheat swung up to $1.03 at Chicago and to $1.18 at Minneapolis. Traders studied estimates that wheat and dryness had already destroyed 100,000,000 to 140,000,000 bushels of spring wheat in the United States and 75,000,000 in Canada. Wheat has gained 15 cents since June 1 and corn 12 in a month.

Southern crop damage was calculated at $150,000,000 although general rains in Tennessee, Arkansas and the middle west gulf states provided a respite yesterday. Chicago statisticians figured $100,000,000 losses in the midwest.

Agricultural observers in the Dakotas and Montana termed the visitation the worst in the history of their states. Officials in the Black Hills area of South Dakota decided to abandon their wasted fields to grasshoppers. They returned a consignment of poison bran shipped in to eradicate the pests.

In Texas hundreds of thousands of acres were stripped of cotton and corn by floods that cost 23 known lives.

Czech Photographer Shoots Self to Death At League Assembly

Geneva, July 3 (AP).—A newspaper reporter-photographer interrupted the League of Nations assembly session today to shout "This is the end", and shot himself.

Fears that there had been an attempt to assasinate delegates swept through the assembly. The statesmen gathered in the hall, jumped to their feet, many of them shouting.

The man who was shot was Stefan Lux of Czechoslovakia, a representative of Praha newspapers. Lux, a Jew, left a note saying he wished by his act to draw world attention to the plight of Jews in Germany.

He was sitting in the gallery adjoining the main benches of the delegates. Suddenly he arose and cried out in his own language: "This is the end! It is all over!"

He pulled out a revolver and shot himself twice in the chest.

When the resulting uproar had subsided, Dr. Augusto Vasconcellos of Portugal, former president of the assembly and a distinguished physician, administered first aid to Lux.

The newspaperman said freely: "My brief case."

League officials opened the brief case after Lux had been taken to a hospital. In it they found letters addressed to King Edward, to Anthony Eden, the British foreign secretary, and to J. A. C. Avenol, secretary general of the League.

In the letter to Avenol, Lux presented excuses for the trouble he was causing.

Premier Paul Van Zeeland of Belgium, president of the assembly, expressed regrets for the incident, then said: "Gentlemen, let us continue."

The session went on.

The shooting was the second incident during the current session to shatter the dignity of a League meeting.

Delegates were thrown into an uproar Wednesday when eight Italian newspapermen cursed and booed Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia as he arose to make a plea for his country.

Benjamin Johnson Is In Serious Condition

Benjamin Johnson, 78, of Atwood, who was injured by an automobile at Stone Ridge, Thursday, was brought to the Benedictine Hospital about midnight. Reports from the Hospital this morning were that his condition was very serious.

Johnson, whose sight is said to be poor, according to witnesses of the accident, came out of the store of Frank Davis in Stone Ridge and walked into the rear of an automobile being driven by Mrs. Margaret B. Holmes of Downsville. When first examined by Dr. E. F. Shea of Stone Ridge it was thought that he had escaped with a slight concussion and some bruises, but later reports indicated that he had sustained a fracture of the skull.

$2,000,000 New Deal Campaign Is Planned To Begin on Labor Day

(By The Associated Press.)

Washington—New Dealers worked on plans for a fast-moving $2,000,000 fall campaign to re-elect President Roosevelt, with prospects that the intensive drive will get under way Labor Day.

Chicago—John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, declared the Democrats plagiarized Republican planks, including expressions of monopoly, zudget balancing and the civil service.

New York—The Society of Tammany completed plans for the celebration tomorrow of its 150th anniversary. The program includes addresses by Senator Copeland (D-NY), frequent New Deal critic, and Attorney General Cummings, staunch friend of the administration.

St. Paul—A "rump" group headed by Rep. Usher Burdick, which quit the National Farmers' Holiday Association, planned its own "national convention. The group under Burdick, manager of Rep. William Lemke's Union party presidential campaign, said the association was under Communist control.

Estes Park, Colo.—With campaign associates at his side, Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, Republican presidential nominee, worked on his acceptance speech There were indications Landon would deal with farm problems in his address at Topeka July 23.

Theft is Alleged.

Chicago, July 3 (AP).—Modelers of the 1936 Democratic platform today faced the accusation by John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, that some of their planks were expediently plagiarized from the Republicans.

He declared, at a dinner given last night by the Illinois Republican finance committee, that Democratic pronouncements of opposition to monopoly, plans to balance the budget and promises to uphold the Civil Service system were made with an eye to the platform previously adopted at the rival nominating convention.

"Hardly was the ink dry on the anti-monopoly plank of the Republican platform when Mr. Roosevelt suddenly deplored the evils of monopoly and added our pledge on this issue to his own platform," said Hamilton.

"Hardly was the ink dry on the Civil Service plan when Mr. Roosevelt again followed our lead, to the astonishment of the nation which is well aware of his record on Civil Service. After reading the Cleveland platform, Mr. Roosevelt declined once more to promise a balanced budget."

Tammany 150 Years Old.

New York, July 3 (AP).—The society of Tammany celebrates the 150th anniversary of its founding tomorrow—with its political influence in national affairs only a shadow of its great strength of other years.

President Roosevelt leads off the list of honorary patrons of the celebration, and Alfred E. Smith is one of the Tammany sachems on the official committee—but there will be no meeting of the onetime political friends.

Former Governor Smith went to a Long Island resort last night with his family to spend the Fourth of July holiday and will not attend the celebration. The President, likewise, will not be in attendance; but he was expected to send a message of greeting.

With Roosevelt's triumph at the Chicago convention in 1932, and with the separate leaderships built up in the metropolitan area under the guidance of National Chairman James A. Farley, the influence of the society has reached its lowest point in years.

To make things politically worse, it was swept out of power in the city in the last election by the "Fusion" victory of Mayor Fiorello La Guardia.

Trustees Must Furnish Pupils' Transportation

Albany, July 3 (Special)—Appeals of two residents of school district 27, in the town of Wawarsing, Ulster county, asking that the State Education Department direct the district trustee to furnish transportation for school children, has been upheld by State Education Commissioner Frank P. Graves.

In ordering the conveyance, Commissioner Graves has directed the trustee to proceed at once to make arrangements for transporting the children, and to pay the cost out of any funds of the district available for the purpose, subject to the approval of the State Education Department and the district superintendent of schools. In the event there are no funds available, the trustee is authorized to raise by tax, on the taxable property of the district, a sum sufficient to pay the cost of the desired transportation.

The appellants in the case were Rose Goldstein and Morris Rabinowitz.

Siamese Twin Dies 30 Hours After Death Of Sister at Medford

Medford, Mass., July 3 (AP)—A baby girl Siamese twin who lived nearly 30 hours attached to the body of her dead sister, died this morning.

Dr. John B. Vernaglia, physician, who had been preparing for a delicate and difficult operation to separate the joined skulls of the twins, had announced earlier that the five-pound girl was losing strength.

The twins were born Wednesday night to Mrs. Diego Fiorenzo, already the mother of two normal children. The larger of the Siamese twins, weighing seven pounds, died a few hours after birth.

The backs of their heads were joined by a three and a half inch bony growth and Dr. Vernaglia said he was uncertain whether or not their brain tissue was connected.

Dr. Vernaglia said he had no successful precedent to guide him in this particular type of operation. He said he placed the surviving twin on a formula to build up her strength, while he studied the demarcation between the tissues of the two children.

Large obstacles to success loomed in his path, the young doctor said—the possibilities of meningitis and herniation, the live brain organism pressing against the wound—the difficulty of fitting the scalp over the wound and shaping the head.

Pleas For Freedom.

Portland, Ore., July 3 (AP).—Pleas for academic freedom and federal aid for schools were carried to all parts of the nation today as thousands of teachers started homeward from the annual convention of the National Education Association. Delegates chose Orville C. Pratt, school superintendent of Spokane, Wash., to represent the 200,000 members as president. He won in a close race with William H. Holmes, Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Commissioner G. Lunn Holds Hearing on Bus Terminal Situation

Former Lieutenant Governor George R. Lunn of Schenectady, now one of the public service commissioners, was at the court house, Kingston, this forenoon to hold a hearing in connection with the proposed location of a new bus terminal on North Front street, on the Aduchefsky property.

At the opening of the hearing it developed that there had apparently been a bit of misunderstanding regarding the situation, the Kingston City Transportation Co. having been cited as a party to the matter, with the idea that the bus lines involved were a part of that system.

Roscoe Elsworth appeared for George B. TeBow of the Transportation Co., and stated that the company was not involved in the matter.

John M. Cashin, corporation counsel, appeared for the city and gave a brief review of the case for the benefit of Commissioner Lunn. He spoke of the fact that the Crown street terminal, used for years as an uptown terminal by out of town bus lines, had been closed for a short time and that some of the bus line operators had agreed to use a new terminal on North Front street, if permission could be obtained. In the meantime Fred H. Illert, who conducts a confectionery store opposite the old terminal, had secured a three years' lease on the terminal property from the owners, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., and the terminal had been reopened.

Mr. Cashin told of hearings held before the Common Council requesting permission for use of the new terminal on North Front street and the granting of such permission and any necessary change of route on the part of lines using the new terminal, subject to approval of the Public Service Commission. He understood that at present six of the bus lines were using the new terminal and five were using the old terminal on Crown street. Mr. Cashin added that Kingston city, as such, was not interested in the matter.

Commissioner Lunn stated that apparently the thing to do was to adjourn the present hearing and allow the six bus lines now using the North Front street terminal to make application to the Public Service Commission for permission to make the necessary change of route, following which a further hearing could be called and those interested could be heard.

W. D. Smith of East Kingston appeared and spoke against the proposed change. He said that several hundred people had presented petitions against the change at the Common Council hearings, adding that he had presented one petition carrying 100 or more names. He argued that the Crown street terminal, which he said had been in use for over 20 years, was more conveniently located for people desiring to do business in the business section and that traffic hazards were much greater at the North Front street location. Mr. Smith said that he was a salesman and had been using the Crown street terminal for 12 years past.

Charges of Communism

Piermont, N. Y., July 3 (AP)—Charges that Communism was "favorably" discussed and patriotic American songs parodied by girls at Camp Jane Addams, a federal project in Bear Mountain Park, were made today in a resolution adopted by a committee of the Rockland county American Legion. Clifford O. Poole, chairman of the county Legion resolutions committee, said his group adopted a resolution which asserted "that young women at the camp, named after the noted American social worker, were favorably discussing Communism.

Cabaret Hostess Now Sought for Killing of Blonde Club Singer

Chicago, July 3 (AP)—A brunette cabaret hostess was sought today by detectives investigating the "vengeance slaying" of a platinum blonde night club songstress.

The object of the wide search was Mrs. Ruth Freed, 28. Captain Andrew Barry ordered the hunt for her after he said she had been identified from a photograph as the slender woman who left a near North Side hotel yesterday shortly after Miss Audrey Vallette, 31, had been shot to death in her luxurious apartment.

The captain said he had learned from a show girl friend of the victim that she had been friendly with Mrs. Freed's husband, Edward, manager of a gay resort called the "Nut House."

A single bullet in the chest killed Miss Vallette as she apparently reclined on a bed about 1 p. m., clad only in a pink negligee eating a late breakfast.

Harold Knox, assistant manager of the hotel, told officials the woman he identified from a picture as Mrs. Freed had called earlier to see some apartments. After inspecting several, he added, she said she would call on Annabelle Blake—the name under which Miss Vallette had registered.

Back at his desk, Knox answered a house call at the switchboard. He heard Miss Vallette gasp: "Help. I've been shot."

Hotel attendants said the brunette caller hurried down to the street and raced off in an automobile.

Lieut. Otto Erlanson reported Mrs. Freed had entered the "Nut House" some time after one o'clock, removed her pictures from the wall and departed with her husband.

Miss Vallette was a distant relative of Judge Albert H. Gary, once head of the U. S. Steel Corporation.

Luciano and Gang Are Split by Officials

Ossining, N. Y., July 3 (AP)—The state completed the breaking up of New York city's "vice ring" today with the transfer from Sing Sing to widly separated prisons of James "Lucky" Luciano and six of his confederates.

Luciano, overlord of the vice gang convicted recently in the drive against racketeers conducted by Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey, was taken to New York state's "Siberia"—Clinton prison at Dannemora. With him went Ralph Liguori and David Bettillo.

The prison is located in a desolate region of Clinton county, in the northern Adirondacks. Although within 50 miles of the Canadian border, the rugged terrain forms a barrier through which few prisoners have ever escaped.

James Frederico and Abraham Wahrman were transferred to the century old prison at Auburn, in Cayuga county. Thomas Pennochio and Jack Ellenstein went to the state's most modern penal institution, Attica prison in Wyoming county.

State Commissioner of Correction Edward P. Mulrooney, who was police commissioner of New York when Luciano and his associates were "big shots," ordered their transfer from Sing Sing to break up the gang. When the prisoners left the prison here yesterday each was shackled with handcuffs and leg irons to a convict with whom he was previously unacquainted.

Japanese Disapproval

Peiping, July 3 (AP)—A storm of Japanese disapproval today greeted a British consular court decision denying implication of two British soldiers in the slaying of a Japanese soldier. Japanese called a mass meeting to "consider counter-measures," and besieged the Japanese embassy to protest the court's finding. (The consular court decided evidence was not sufficient to link the two British soldiers with the killing of Kisaku Sasaki, Japanese soldier who was injured in a fight May 26 and died two days later.)

St. Louis Python Given First Public Banquet

St. Louis, July 3 (AP) Blondie the St. Louis Zoo's 19-foot Indian python which has been on a hunger strike, had her first meal in public yesterday.

The huge reptile offered little resistance as eight keepers rammed 14 pounds of ground rabbit meat down her broad gullet.

Blondie's jaws were forced open and between them was thrust a length of firehose, lubricated at the business end with slippery elm and loaded with a generous helping of rabbit hamburg, "dished out" with a ramrod.

This was the first "banquet" to which the public was invited. Zoo officials estimated 5,000 persons witnessed the feeding.

Articles Handled By Herzog Supply Company Will Be Added to East Strand Store Lines of Merchandise.

LONG ESTABLISHED

Johnson Store Is One of the Oldest Established Businesses in the Downtown Section of City.

Matthew H. Herzog, president of the Herzog Supply Company, this morning completed negotiations and purchased from the estate of the late J. Townsend Johnson the long established J. T. Johnson Hardware Company business located at 6 East Strand. Mr. Herzog stated that the business was taken over as a going business and would be continued as a general hardware business as in the past and that he would add to the line of merchandise carried such additional articles as are now handled by the Herzog Supply Company at the uptown store at 332 Wall street.

Possession of the Johnson business passed immediately to the Herzog Supply Company on completion of the deal. Negotiations have been going on for several days past between Mr. Herzog, and the First National Bank, executors of the estate of Mr. Johnson and Mrs. C. I. Crowell, daughter of Mr. Johnson.

The J. T. Johnson Hardware Company is one of the oldest established businesses in the lower section of the city and in taking it over Mr. Herzog said his company would continue the business along the same lines as in the past. The methods so successfully followed by Mr. Johnson will be continued in operation and the same lines of merchandise carried, adding to them the additional departments which are now stocked at the Wall street store.

Mr. Herzog told a Freeman reporter this morning that in the near future a sale would probably be held and the Johnson stock adjusted to conform with that of the uptown store.

Herzog Here Since 1909

M. H. Herzog came to Kingston and engaged in business on May 10, 1909, and for a time conducted a paint business and in addition to the retail store which was located in the Cordts' Building at 293 Wall street, adjacent to the court house, he was engaged in the painting contracting business. Later he was compelled to seek larger quarters and purchased the building at 332 Wall street, which runs through to 321 Fair street, and moved his growing business there. The Herzog Hardware & Paint Company, Inc., was organized and besides paint and painting supplies he added hardware to the line and entered the electric refrigeration, radio and kindred businesses. Recently the firm name was changed to the Herzog Supply Company. With a store located in the lower section of the city people from southern Ulster will be able to trade at the Herzog store without the necessity of driving to the uptown store on Wall street. The location of a store in either end of the city will be a convenience to many people who may now shop at the store more convenient to their location.

Long Established Business

The Johnson hardware house is one of the old established businesses of Kingston. Mr. Johnson, who died in December, 1935, embarked in the hardware business about 43 years ago when he, with W. D. McMillan, formed the hardware firm of McMillan & Johnson. Mr. McMillan remained with the firm for about a year when Mr. Johnson took over his interest and continued the business under his own name. During the nearly half century that the business has been established it has become widely and favorably known throughout Kingston and the surrounding territory, and was one of the few hardware stores that was devoted exclusively to the handling of hardware.

Voteless Women Sit In French Cabinet

But They Are 'There To Work, Not As Decorations, Premier Blum Explains

Paris (AP).—Mesdames les ministres," the three women who are members of Loen Blum's cabinet but cannot vote in national elections, include one scientist, one teacher and one publicist.

"The three women in the new cabinet," said the premier when the members of his government were announced, "are there as workers and not as decorations."

Undersecretary for scientific research is able Madame Irene Joliot-Curie, daughter of two winners of the Nobel prize which she herself won with her husband.

Deputies Applaud Women.

Mademoiselle Suzanne Lacore, modest little retired school teacher, is undersecretary for child welfare.

The publicist is Madame Cecile Kahn Brunschvicg, president of the French Union for Woman Suffrage, who was named undersecretary of state.

When the three walked with their fellow ministers to the government benches in the chamber of deputies both center and left deputies hailed the feminine invasion with applause.

At 39 Mme Joliot-Curie is the youngest of the trio. With her husband she has spent most of her time in the Curie laboratory where they now are working for an artificial substitute for radium—the element discovered by her father and mother.

Works With Husband.

Both she and her husband are socialists, but until she entered the Blum cabinet, she found her laboratory work, combined with the job of rearing their two children, a girl of nine and a boy of four, enough.

Mlle. Lacore, tiny 61-year-old teacher, is one of France's leading authorities of child welfare. Her regular job for 33 years was teaching the communal school at Ajat in southwestern France.

She has been a socialist since 1906. Long before the war she battled for better educational and social development of French children in books and pamphlets.

Spinster "Mothers" Pupils.

"I am a spinster," said Mlle. Lacore, "but in 33 years I have been 'mother' to nearly a thousand poor school children."

Mme. Brunschvicg traveled around France making suffrage speeches to amused men and serious women for years while her husband, Leon Brunschvicg, taught philosophy at the Sorbonne.

Official "voice" of Madame Brunschvicg's suffragettes is her own newspaper, "La Francaise." The task of bringing up a son and two daughters has not prevented her from becoming the feminist leader of the radical-socialist party. She is 59.

Jobs for Youth? Aid Is Offered

Wheat Crowds Out Soy-Beans.

Harbin, Manchoukuo, (AP).—Wheat seems to be crowding out the soy-bean in this region. As millers and grain dealers checked their stocks this spring they found only half as many soy-beans, and twice as much wheat on hand as at this time last year.

Police Nab Anti-Jewish Poles.

Sosnowiec, Poland, (AP) Youthful anti-Semites in this town organized a vigilance committee which systematically prevented persons from entering Jewish stores until the police intervened. Each of the committee had the choice of being fined $18 or spending 10 days in jail.

Jack Moran, 10-year-old actor, was selected as "America's most representative boy" by a national company.

BELGRADE BANS CHICAGO ON MAP OF YUGOSLAVIA

Petrovgrad, Yugoslavia, (AP).—If Belgrade officialdom hadn't put its foot down, this town would have been renamed for Chicago, Ill.

Orders that Yugoslav place-names be changed to remove former Austrian and Hungarian connotations meant that many communities took the names of Yugoslav patriots, heroes and kings, without more ado.

Not so Veliki Beckerek, whose residents believed the town's reputation for lawlessness was like Chicago's. The proposal got to the capital, but a government official vetoed it promptly by telephone. So Veliki Beckerek became Petrovgrad.

Italian Futuristic Art Works Added To Horrors Of War

By CHARLES H. GUPTILL
(Associated Press, Foreign Staff).

Rome, (AP).—Italy's conquest of Ethiopia struck a blow for futurism as well as for civilization, says Filippo Tomasso Marinetti, futurism's founder and number one apostle in Italy.

The war's contribution to "The Cause," Signor Marinetti explained, was the opportunity it provided for futurists to indulge their favorite whim of "synthesizing" human experience at super-heated emotional temperatures.

"When the war started," he said, "I called upon futurists throughout Italy to volunteer. Many were accepted and had the first opportunity ever afforded to synthesize the intensity of a battle in color, symbols and design while actually undergoing the experience."

Marinetti was a major in the 28th of October Division of Blackshirts. The product of his own synthesis is "The Abyssinian Poem of the 28th of October Division."

The epic will not be published for several weeks, but a sample, synthesized directly from the heat of the battle but deprived in translation of its onomatopoeia, ran as follows:

"Towers cannon virility volleys erection telemeter ecstasy tumb tumb 3 seconds tumb tumb wave smiles bursts of laughter chic chac plaff pluff gluglugiu glu playing at hide-and-seek virgin crystals flesh jewels pearls iodine salts bromoform aprons gas liquids bubbles 3 seconds. . . ."

The "tumb tumbing" goes on and there isn't even a comma until the enemy flees.

The Marinetti study in which these milestones in futurism's advance were described to me is a nightmarish sort of retreat. Pictures hang on the walls from their corners. Some of the frames resemble no known geometrical forms.

Dominating the scene is a pop-eyed figure with chrome yellow complexion and contorted purple lips peering from a vortex of polychromatic cubes, triangles and radial lines.

There was about it a certain familiar aspect which eventually synthesized itself and became identifiable. It was Mussolini.

ONLY ONE CHILD IN TEN RATED HEALTHY IN CHINA

Nanking, (AP).—That more than 90 per cent of China's school-age children have physical defects, more than 80 per cent are undernourished and many are diseased, is the startling finding of the nationalist government.

Such elementary practices as bathing and brushing teeth scarcely are known in millions of Chinese homes.

In view of this serious situation, the government has ordered health education and physical training intensified with special training courses here for doctors, nurses and health technicians.

HIGHBROW COPS

Many people feel highbrow and up-stage about policemen, but this attitude is changing a little. One reason is that educated men are going into police work more than they used to. Most of the Washington G-men nowadays are college graduates. It is less known that many college men are seeking police jobs. And as might be expected, they have a big advantage in the examinations. In a recent examination in Cleveland, out of a class of 300, seven of the ten men rating highest were college graduates. One competent young patrolman with a degree of Bachelor of Philosophy and a fair knowledge of science, psychology, chemistry, bacteriology and medicine, insists that it's a fine calling for an educated man.

"People outside of the department believe most patrolmen are dimwits," he says. "But if they had to meet and solve some of the copper's problems for a while, they'd realize that the average policeman must have a far greater knowledge of legal procedure and human values than any man except a capable criminal lawyer. The average policeman's life is spent not in chasing Dillingers, but in straightening out the little troubles of the millions of John Smiths who don't want trouble but don't know how to avoid it. That's where training in philosophy and psychiatry are invaluable." We may yet see colleges installing departments of police instruction, perhaps giving Bachelor of Policing degrees.

TALKING IT OVER IN RUSSIA

Russians should know their new constitution well when it becomes effective next fall. The authorities are encouraging general discussion of it. They have distributed copies of the text far and wide. Aviators are carrying them into isolated regions, especially in the far north. Tens of millions of farmers and industrial workers of both sexes are already taking part in local discussions. More Russians can read now than ever before in that country's history. Illiteracy has declined in the last 40 years from 69 per cent to less than 10 per cent of the population. Citizens are therefore better prepared to tackle such a job of mastering the new constitution.

It would be interesting to know, and probably some of our foreign correspondents will tell us soon, how intelligent and searching are the government-stimulated discussions. Do the people really go over the document clause by clause and find out just what their privileges and duties are to be? And do they express adverse criticisms as freely as they express praise? In this connection, it is interesting to note that it is the merchants, land-owners and nobility who are gaining chiefly by the coming governmental changes. Since the Bolshevik revolution they have been the down-trodden and oppressed classes in Russian society.

OLD AND NEW WINDMILL

Duralumin sails are to be put on the oldest windmill in East Sussex, England. The mill, which stands at ancient Winchelsea, has a recorded history of 176 years, but its structure indicates that it is much older. At any rate, it is known that during one century of its existence it had only 12 sets of sails. Each set was made of linen and lasted for years. Cotton sails were used after that. They did not wear so well.

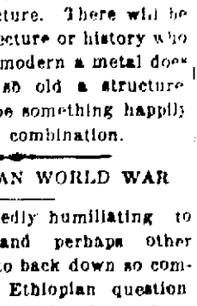

In 1910 the windmill was allowed to become derelict because it was not earning its up-keep. Even historical antiques, unless they are endowed or in museums, must be profitable in these days of efficiency. Recently, however, the people of Winchelsea have become interested in the windmill again. That is why they are going to modernize it with the duralumin sails, which may outlast the rest of the mill. It is possible that the new sails will prolong the life of the whole windmill. This aluminum alloy is light as well as strong, and may do the necessary work without greatly taxing the strength of the rest of the structure. There will be purists in architecture or history who will say that so modern a metal does not belong on so old a structure. Yet there may be something happily symbolic in this combination.

BETTER THAN WORLD WAR

It is undoubtedly humiliating to Great Britain and perhaps other League powers to back down so completely on the Ethiopian question. Sanctions against Italy have been ended and the aggressor nation has apparently succeeded in its aim. Eventually it may be punished more by its self-created problems than the League powers could have punished it. However that may be, the nations that threatened and scolded at the start have swallowed their words.

There is one reassuring fact among all the disagreeable and alarming ones. It is that a world war did not come out of the angled situation. A world war might have saved Ethiopia. It might not. And it most certainly would have done far more damage to civilization than could be justified by the good accomplished. The issue was not clear-cut. There were too many undercurrents of selfish interests and national ambitions to make it a truly righteous war. Perhaps diplomatic failure and humiliation and an apparently successful aggression are the least of the possible evils.

That Body of Yours

PREVENTING HEAT STROKE

In sun stroke the individual has been out in the direct rays of the sun and the skin is hot, flushed and dry. It is not hard to tell what has happened. In heat stroke however there is no sun to be blamed and yet the individual is suffering from heat just the same, because the body is unable to throw off the heat it has itself manufactured. This of course is due to the fact that as the body gets rid of heat by sending the hot blood to the skin to go off as hot sweat, very little heat can get away from the skin because the surrounding air is itself very hot and very moist.

This great amount of heat in the body has likely been manufactured because the individual was working hard (creating heat) in a close place where the air was not circulating or being changed. This great amount of heat confined in the body causes weakness and exhaustion and the skin, instead of being hot, flushed and dry as in sun stroke, is cold, pale and clammy. The treatment is removal to a cool place and a little cold water or ice to the head for a short time.

To prevent heat stroke some means of ventilating or causing a draft such as the use of an electric fan, or opening doors and windows, causes the air to move and this change of air allows the skin to "breathe" out heat and moisture from the body.

Research workers have found that factory workers drink a great amount of water and as the heat makes them perspire freely a great amount of salt is lost from the body because of the salt going out in the perspiration from the skin.

As salt holds 70 times its own weight of water in the body, you can see that if much salt be lost in the perspiration there will not be enough water lef in the tissues to enable them to work properly. The body is "dehydrated" as it is called, causing the symptoms of heat stroke.

In some foundries and factories tablets containing 15 grains—a quarter teaspoonful—of common table salt are placed beside the drinking taps and the men encouraged to take a tablet of salt every time they take a drink of water.

Ventilating the room and taking salt with every drink of water is considered the most effective means of preventing heat stroke.

MURDER TONIGHT
BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

SYNOPSIS: Inspector Hylton has not made much headway at finding the man who clubbed old Arthur Burdett to death—although he has found something suspicious about the dour manservant of the deceased, who is to inherit all the property of his master. But the whole village of Hope Enderton is more or less implicated—even the vicar just has dropped a compromising remark to Hylton. And Dale Shipley, half nephew of Burdett, is on the suspicious list too. Hylton just is meeting Shipley in the bar of the Hoops.

Chapter 19

MARY'S DECEIT

DALE nodded to Hylton and regarded him with an eye that lost nothing of its furtive wariness when the Inspector strolled up to the bar to join him in a drink.

"Making any headway?" he asked casually.

"Lots," Hylton cheerfully assured him. The young man seemed relieved. "That's good hearing," he said. "After anyone in particular?"

"We're always after somebody, you know," the Inspector answered.

"Um. I suppose you'll be too busy to come out for a day's hunting tomorrow—they're meeting at the Five Way Post just up the road, and Perry here would find you a hack."

"You haven't said anything to anyone about it?"

Kingsley Hylton considered this semi-invitation. True there were things he wanted to do; but true also that he had a great theory about observing people in their unguarded moments.

"I might have a day out," he said. "I'll think it over."

* * * * *

"I don't understand about Monday evening, Mary, you told me you had been to church as usual."

"John—I—"

Ping . . .

John Fenton stared after his wife as she automatically obeyed the summons of the shop door bell. Even if their world was tumbling about their ears it would not have entered John or Mary Fenton's head to let that bell ring unheeded; it, and what it stood for, had become the major part of their lives.

John and Mary Fenton were feeling the pressure of big business. The fact was that old Burdett, who was the Fenton's landlord, was renting the premises next door to the Coastal Cooperative Society, which first had tried to buy out the Fentons, and then had determined to run them out of business.

And the further truth was that after John Fenton had failed to persuade old Burdett to stand by local enterprise and forsake his plan to rent to the Cooperative, Mary Fenton had dressed in her Sunday black, taken her prayer book under her arm, and gone to see Burdett her self.

When Mary came back into the room from attending to her customer, her husband said slowly.

"I don't understand about Monday evening, Mary. You told me you had been to church as usual."

Mary hesitated and looked at him, and he was frightened by something in her eyes.

She tried to tell him something, but could only cry "John—I—I—I—" then rushing across the room she fell on her knees at his side and with her head on his lap burst into a fit of uncontrollable sobbing.

NANCY FEATHERSTONE greeted her big grey, who had a shrewd idea of what was afoot and was excited with anticipation of it, and turned him left down the road as she came out of her drive gateway.

Her groom, standing arms akimbo in the stable yard watching her departure, was mildly surprised "Itum way o' going to the Five Way Post," he muttered; but he was a philosophical man, as grooms mostly are; in his experience women and horses were almost equally unpredictable.

Nancy took the grey up Pilcher's Lane at the top of which she saw what she had hoped to see, a solitary horseman riding ahead of her. She put the grey on to the wide grass verge of the lane and went along it at a canter.

"Hallo, Dale," she cried, reining in alongside him.

Young Shipley turned to her in high good humor: he was immensely pleased with his new mount and as far as he could see all Banner Dawley's glowing prognostications might well be justified.

"Hallo, Nancy. How d'you like the look of her?"

With the morning sun gleaming on her chestnut coat and white stockings the mare looked a picture, and young Dale Shipley, always at his best on horseback, took the eye, too, in his rakish way.

"She looks splendid, Dale."

"She feels right: keen as mustard, I should say, though I haven't galloped her yet. I suppose we'll draw the Seven Acre first, won't we?"

"Pretty sure to."

"I wonder if that old fox we've had out before 'll be there."

NANCY laughed. "I'm beginning to believe the Seven Acre vixen is a myth," she said; "we never catch her anyway."

They jogged along in silence for a bit, each taking stock of the other's mount; then Dale reined in closer to Nancy and said a little awkwardly.

"I say—Nancy—"

"Yes?"

"You know what I told you about having a bit of a tiff with old Burdett."

"Yes."

"You haven't said anything to anyone about it, have you?"

"Of course not."

Dale looked relieved. "That's all right," he said with a laugh. "It doesn't really matter, of course, only you know how people talk. That detective fellow would soon get hold of a thing like that—he's coming out today. I put him up to biring that old hack of Perry's: with any luck he'll break his blasted neck."

They had turned the corner of the lane now, and a quarter of a mile away down the straight Roman road could be seen the preliminary muster of the meet where the five ways met. Other riders were nearing them, and on an impulse Nancy leaned across and said, "Dale, would you tell me one thing—"

Shipley looked up quickly at her. "What is it?"

"Lawson didn't bring you any—any bad news the other day at the Cottage, did he?"

As on many other occasions in his life, Dale told a lie and the truth in one breath.

"Bad news?" he asked. "Why should he? He only came to see if I was suited with a horse."

Nancy knew her Dale better, it is possible, than her Dale knew himself. And somehow, she was not altogether happy.

RIFTON LADIES' AID MEETING AND CAKE SALE

Rifton, July 3—The Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. Church have decided to hold a cake sale on Mrs. Palle's lawn on Friday afternoon, July 17, and the neighbors and friends of the Aid are requested to bear this date in mind and relieve themselves of baking on this date and purchase their home made cakes from the Ladies' Aid at that time.

SEA KEEPS PUSHING LIGHTHOUSE AROUND

Century Old Contest With Hatteras Continues.

Washington.—King Neptune and Mother Nature won by a washout!

Thus might read the terse description by a modern sports writer who witnessed the recent abandonment of the famous black and white striped Cape Hatteras lighthouse.

"To keep a light burning on Cape Hatteras has been a struggle," says the National Geographic society. "In 1798 the first tower was erected. It was two miles from the coast but it took only 72 years of relentless pounding of the Atlantic to reach the base of that sandstone pile.

"The recently abandoned 'light,' a brick structure, succeeded the old tower. It was built only slightly more than a mile inland, but the sea has taken 66 years to come dangerously near it. One reason for the slower progress of the waves to the second structure was the repeated attempts of the government to fight back. One device to prevent erosion of the coast was interlocking sheet steel piling driven into the coastal sands. A new steel tower has been built another mile inland and the battle is on again.

Sea Changes Coast.

"The whole contour of the eastern coast of the United States is constantly being changed by the sea which cuts away some beaches and builds up others. The average force of the Atlantic waves in winter is estimated at from one to three tons per square foot.

"Cape Charles, Virginia, is one of nature's most active seacoast battle grounds. In 1827 a lighthouse was built 700 feet from the shore. It was deserted in 1863 because the site was undermined by erosion. A second tower, built the following year farther inland, was also undermined and abandoned. In 1893 a third tower was built nearly a mile from shore. This tower, a skeleton iron structure, is still in use.

"Neptune has been no respecter of geography in wielding his chief weapon against lighthouses—erosion. The Cape Canaveral light on the east coast of Florida; the Hunting island light, South Carolina; and the lights at Cape May, New Jersey, and Sand Island, Alabama, are among those that have succumbed to the sea's invasion.

"The abandoned tower on low-lying Cape Hatteras was the tallest in the United States, being 193 feet from its base to the top of its lantern, but it was not the country's highest light. That honor goes to the light at Cape Mendocino on the coast of California. The squat tower is itself only 43 feet high, but it is on a cliff about 379 feet above high water. This light, of 130,000 candle power, is visible 28 miles.

"The country's most powerful coast light is located at Navesink on the highlands south of New York harbor. This is a huge electric light of 9,000,000 candle power. Since it is only 246 feet above sea level, it can be seen only 22 miles out to sea, however. The proper elevation of lighthouses is a problem. Lights must have a reasonable elevation above sea level to overcome the curvature of the earth; yet if built too high, they may be obscured by fog.

Electricity Used.

"Most of the major seacoast lights today use electricity, although incandescent oil vapor, and oil wick lamps are still used extensively in harbor and river lights. The lights are intensified by large lenses. Both lights and lenses are protected by outer lanterns of glass. The earliest lighthouses burned wood, after which coal, candles, whale oil, kerosene, acetylene gas, and electricity were successfully introduced.

"The first United States lighthouse in this country is at Sandy Hook, New Jersey. It had been in operation 12 years when the Declaration of Independence was signed. Its stone and brick walls are seven feet thick at the base. While lighthouses have been built of stone, brick, wood, and iron, most of the modern structures are of steel or concrete.

"The first United States lighthouse exposed to the open sea was that on Minots Ledge, a reef off Boston which had long terrified mariners. An iron-frame lighthouse, built there in 1848, was lost in a gale one year later, and was replaced by a stone structure which was completed in 1860 and is still in use. Surf breaks against its base, and in stormy weather, the waves dash almost to the lantern.

"At the more prominent and dangerous points along the seaboard, rivers, and lakes of the United States and its possessions, are located 325 lighthouses with resident keepers. The United States lighthouse service employs 1,100 lighthouse keepers, only one of whom is a woman."

Biblical Actor Is Honored by France

Paris—The French of the Legion of Honor. Jouhe has just been made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor. Jouhe has played the role of Christ in hundreds of medieval mystery plays during the last ten years.

In the open-air theater in front of Notre Dame cathedral last year, 125,000 persons saw him impersonate Jesus. This year loud speakers will make audible every word of "The True Mystery of the Passion" which will be presented during the Paris festival. Jouhe will play the role of Jesus.

The kitchen, long the work shop of the home and the one room in which the homemaker is forced to spend so many hours, has at last come into its own. Today, builders realize that the kitchen sells the house and, as a consequence, this room has taken on an air of individuality.

TALKS TO PARENTS

New Contact

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

School was over and summer vacation had begun when Mrs. Jones suggested to one of her half-grown daughters, "Let's run away on a trip. We'll get in the car and just go places, any place, you and I alone." Next day they climbed into the family car and went out into the blue.

They were gone only four days, but those four days did more to cement a friendship between the two than years of home life could have accomplished. Away from the accustomed background and routine of home-life, mother and daughter found each other very different. The girl seemed suddenly to grow up, to gain in independence and resourcefulness. The new scenes and events which they saw brought out an unexpected store of information, and betrayed points of view and phases of thought which the mother had never guessed.

And the mother, relieved of the responsibilities and duties of home, with its three meals a day, bed-making and darning, grew younger, more like another girl than a mother. She was unexpectedly humorous, and proved an exhilarating and adaptable companion. The mode of travel had of necessity to be inexpensive, so their nights were spent in cabins where, after a long day's driving, mother and daughter would relax and chat in the evening like two girls.

In this day of automobiles, cabin camps, good roads and excellent, inexpensive eating places, such trips could be far more usual than they are. There is no need to travel always as a family, nor to travel only where there is an objective to the trip. Travel, undertaken in a carefree, holiday spirit, shows the travelers up in a new light, and parent and child may well return home on a freer and more congenial basis than they set out.

The First Stop

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"LOOK here," said Top Notch, "tomorrow is the Fourth of July. We must celebrate that with Willy Nilly. Let us go back for the day and then we'll start off again."

"All right, baa, baa," bleated Sweet Face, the lamb.

"That's a good idea, growl, growl," said Jolly Bear.

"Couldn't be better, growl, growl," agreed Honey Bear.

"Exactly what I think, too, gruff, gruff," said Jupiter Bear.

"I want to set off some fireworks," said Blacky Bear.

"Oh, let me set some off, too," growled the cub Chubby Bear.

"Isn't he a darling?" said Honey Bear. "You'll take part in the celebration, my dear little cub."

"Goody, goody," growled Chubby.

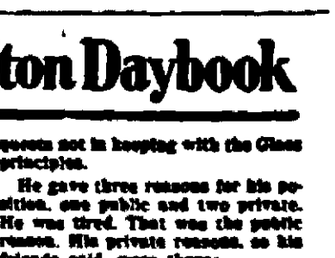

"We made our first stop before we got very far," barked Rip, the dog, "but it's a perfect idea to spend the Fourth with Willy Nilly. In fact it wouldn't be right if we didn't."

They saw Christopher Columbus Crow flying overhead. He was on his way back to Puddle Muddle.

"Caw, caw, caw, I'm going back for the celebration."

"So are we!" they all shouted.

The Gallops were surprised to see the Puddle Muddlers passing their house when so short a time before they had noticed they were going camping.

"I thought that rooster heard us talking before," said Grandpa Grouchy Galump, "and was going to help Willy Nilly." He said this in a tone loud enough for them to hear, and Top Notch had a smile on his beak as he thought of what they were going to do for Willy Nilly right after the Fourth.

A Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — An interesting phase of a political philosophy with as many facets as a cut diamond was disclosed in the appearance of Senator Glass of Virginia at the Democratic convention.

Heatedly as he was opposed to many of President Roosevelt's policies as proffered for a party platform, Senator Glass prepared contest not to combat them.

Partly, no doubt, he felt opposition a bit futile, but on more than one occasion he has indicated a belief that the party in power should give its President quite a portion of what he asks.

* * *

Man Of Principles

A LITTLE more than a year ago Senator Glass was arming up a 72-day battle to get the President $4,880,000,000 relief money without many strings attached.

It was a type of gleam on displeasing to Glass that even as he fought for it he made almost daily major threats as the order he was carrying out as chairman of the senate appropriations committee.

Similarly he refused to go into the platform committee at Philadelphia to upset Roosevelting proposals not in keeping with the Glass principles.

He gave three reasons for his position, one public and two private. He was tired. That was the public reason. His private reasons, so his friends said, were these:

* * *

Behind The Parades

FIRST, he didn't intend to put himself in the false right of ordering any Roosevelting planks by heading a committee position.

Second, he considers Senator Wagner, committee chairman, a socialist. (Senator Wagner says he is not a socialist; is thoroughly a Democrat.)

Glass is no stranger to prettily dictated platforms. It was no secret at the time that in 1916 Glass, as committee chairman, carried from President Wilson's hand, a draft of the platform he expected the national convention at St. Louis to accept. Tradition and Glass' associates say the convention accepted them with scarcely a change of a comma.

In his own mind, Glass has canonized Wilson. He likely will not begrudge Wagner in the manner the right, if he chooses, to canonize Roosevelt.

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

SYNOPSIS: About the only thing Inspector Hylton feels very sure of is that old Arthur Burdett was clubbed to death. The ancient miser's death did not leave any traces of grief on the faces of Hope Enderton's inhabitants. Nearly everybody, even the gentle John Fenton who keep the village store, had a grudge against Burdett. But so far the only persons about whom Hylton knows anything suspicious are Dale Shipley, wastrel half nephew of the deceased, and Lumsdale, Burdett's manservant. Hylton has decided to ride to hounds.

Chapter 20

HUNTSMEN BOLD

KINGSLEY HYLTON — despite the social drawback of his ill assorted hunting clothes, largely borrowed from his landlord — was feeling happy. He enjoyed a day's hunting, and it was long enough since he had had one.

True his mount was long past the first fine flush of its youth, but Hylton felt instinctively towards the old horse a bond of sympathetic fellowship. He reined back to the outer fringe of the animated little crowd at the Five Ways Post and studied the scene attentively. Mrs. Reeves looked splendid on her big dark bay, he noticed particularly how smart and trim her hair was looking; beside her Nancy Featherstone was on the dowdy side of workmanlike: Reeves, who managed not to see the inspector, looked the thruster that he was, and nobody would have mistaken Dale Shipley for anything but a horseman.

Hylton ran his eye over that quartet of diverse people a score of times. They had all been under one roof, as he knew, when the murder had been announced, and one of them, he was convinced, maybe more than one, knew more about the matter than had been admitted.

A long night's reflection had not made the inspector any more pleased with the way the case was going. True, Lumsdale still had a good deal to explain; true, too, that friend Lumsdale was already, on the inspector's orders, subject to a fairly close though unobtrusive supervision; but Hylton had a feeling that he was skimming on the surface of deeper waters than he knew of, and he would not be satisfied until a good deal which he was certain was at present being hidden from him came to light.

Doctor Chambers came tiptutting up on a great ungainly brute that had landed him at various times in practically every ditch in Sussex; he seemed to know everyone and to be popular with them all. It was not a big field, and there was only a sprinkling of pink coats outnumbered by the people in ratcatcher and the usual healthy assortment of sporting farmers in clothes as diverse as their mounts.

"Hounds, gennelmen, please."

The pack, eighteen and a half couple, came pad-padding along, their waving sterns like a feathery forest above them. Hard conditioned hounds these, willing to face briar and bramble and the most punishing of going, sobeit they could do the one thing their nature craved for—kill.

Inspector Hylton eyed them reflectively and it crossed his mind that there was a good deal of human life reproduced in miniature in a hunt. The wind freshened a little and men turned to one another and prophesied; divergently, ignorantly and unscientifically, of that most mysterious of all nature's mysterious things—scent.

IT was this little puff of freshening wind that carried the first signals of danger to the sleeping vixen in Seven Acre Spinney. She slept, and slept deeply, but, as with all wild things, one of her acute senses remained on almost undiminished guard, and her soft muzzle had hardly done twitching at the danger-laden wind before her eyes opened and she was wide awake.

Man!

The vixen lifted a fore paw and licked it where a sharp stone in the bed of a brook had cut the pad a little. Then, as though coming to a sudden decision, she shook herself, turned her muzzle up hill and set off at a great pace as straight as an arrow for Hangman's Holt. The Morechester Hunt was in for the fastest thing of its life.

Kingsley Hylton's hack from the Hoops had not always been a mere hack. It had come down by a long series of successive degradations to that ignominous position; it knew a great deal more about hunting than all the young horses out that day put together, and when it discovered that the man on its back was not altogether a fool at the game it set out to enjoy itself.

Hylton went with the best of them for a mile, but the pace was terrific, and three wide fields of plough put the old hack at the tail of the hunt. The inspector wasn't sorry; he had never intended to waste all the morning chasing a fox, he was after another sort of killer. Instead of following the other laggards through a field he turned up-hill, trotted along the headland, and finding a convenient gap forced his way on to the gateway in the bottom corner of the road.

There followed a slight argument with the hack whose ancient blood was fired with the excitement of the chase; but Hylton won, and was presently trotting steadily back towards Hope Enderton. The hunt had already travelled in a rough quarter of a circle so he was not as far away from the village as he might have been, and before long he was knocking at the door of Fielden Cottage, which Sergeant White had already pointed out to him as belonging to Dale Shipley.

MRS. SOMERS opened the door, and her first cheerful smile at seeing a gentleman in riding clothes (such as they were!) soon yielded to a very different expression when Hylton began to ask questions, and she realized who he must be.

"I'm afraid I'm rather foolish about times and things like that," the inspector said affably. "I just wanted to get it all quite plain about last Monday night."

"I can't tell you what I don't know."

"Quite so. It's what you do know I want to get at Mrs.—"

"Somers, thank you."

"Well, now, Mrs. Somers, let me see; did Mr. Shipley have dinner here on Monday evening?"

"He did not. He went over to Captain Reeves, where he often does go."

"I suppose he motored over there?"

"No. He walked."

"Walked?"

"That's it. 'Mrs. Somers,' he said to me, 'it's a fine night, and I think I shall walk. I'm giving myself plenty of time. That's right, sir,' I said, 'do'; and that's all there was about it."

"What time was that, Mrs. Somers?"

"A quarter to seven exactly; I heard St. Leonard's strike."

Hylton considered . . . a quarter to seven. Young Shipley certainly had allowed himself plenty of time. The inspector already knew from an intensive study of a six-inch Ordnance Map of the district that a moderate walker could hardly take longer than twenty minutes to get from Fielden Cottage to the Reeves' place.

"He took his stick?"

"He always does when he goes walking."

"Does Mr. Shipley often go walking in his dinner clothes?"

"Perhaps he doesn't; but what's the harm in folks walking out on a nice night if they've a mind to?"

"I don't say there's any harm in it, Mrs. Somers."

"That's what I think. I must say I can see a deal more harm in fretting about in other people's business, if you ask me."

The inspector took his leave of this formidably loyal retainer and mounting his horse trotted gently over to Ferney House. A scurry of dogs greeted him in the drive and kept up an ear splitting din until the door was opened by a maid a deal younger and more susceptible to the presence of a mere male than the excellent Mrs. Somers.

Hylton found no difficulty in persuading her to tell him all she knew about Monday evening.

"I suppose it was rather a rush for you with a party on and everything," he said sympathetically.

"Oh, Mrs. Reeves always gets worried when there's anyone coming, you'd think it was Royalty coming to dinner."

"And Captain Reeves wasn't back till late, was he?"

"Oh, the Captain. He's all right. He was back just about half past five. He came back before from hunting and then went out somewhere again."

"And was back at half past five, I see. And the guests, were they all up to time?"

"No, they weren't. Mrs. Meeven is always on at me about being late, so I made a special effort on Monday, in spite of Cook and her stew oven and everything. The little clock in the hall struck half past seven just as I went past it. And then, of course, when I told them dinner was ready, Mr. Shipley hasn't come, if you please. What's the good of being punctual, I'd like to know?"

Mountain Mores Face Last Stand in Ozarks As Radios, Autos Win Hill Folk to City Ways

"Roll the tatters 'round hyar, pappy." Self service from this "lazy Susan" table is facilitated by the revolving upper deck. Shown here in an Ozark Mountain farm home in Phelps county, Mo., it has been in use about 60 years. A group of older generation hill folk, at right, do the square dance at "Woodlock's place" at Davisville, Crawford county.

Automobiles, hard-surfaced roads and radios have knocked down barriers, bringing the outside world to the mountains.

"The old time Christian harmony and ballads rapidly are becoming a thing of the past," laments S. H. Lloyd, Jr., of the psychology and sociology department of the Missouri school of mines here. Lloyd has studied the mountaineer and his family for 15 years.

"Fiddle music is being immensely influenced by radio," he says. "Teachers say the students prefer to get their versions of old time tunes from the so-called hill-billy bands on the air. These bands 'jazzed up' the music and altered the tempo until it sounds as much like Hawaiian as Ozarkian.

"The square dance, although still common, is being crowded out for amusements offered by the folks in town.

"Many of the younger generation drive to town on Sunday, so the itinerant pastor has retired to other fields. Much of the religious superstition no longer is accepted by those who have had the advantages of a few years' schooling."

Hill feuds mostly have ceased, Lloyd says—because "in his perambulations the Ozarks dweller found there were simply too many persons who differed with him on this point or that to enable him to settle all difficulties with his fists, knife or gun."

$2,000,000 New Deal Campaign is Planned

entire floor in an office building here for headquarters, Republican campaign managers for Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas prepared to launch a drive in the eastern states within a few days.

Representative John W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, said that Representative Clarence Hancock, of Syracuse, would head the eastern speakers bureau with Joseph McCune, of Washington, as his assistant.

He said in the New York state drive, regional forces would work through the New York state committee for the Republican presidential candidate. The committee has leased offices in the same building. They are expected to be open July 13.

Before leaving for Washington, Martin said he was confident the Republican nominee would carry New York and the New England states.

"Upper New York was never in better shape for a large Republican vote than it is today," he said.

Martin arrived here yesterday from a trip through New England and said he found in the eastern industrial centers a resentment against the Roosevelt Administration.

"They feel the new deal has been a hardship to them," he declared. "This is particularly true in the textile centers."

"New England is all Republican," he continued. "We're going to carry every state for Landon and make a substantial gain in Congress. We're not worrying about New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Pennsylvania is always a doubtful state, but we are positive that when the votes are in, it will be on the Republican side."

"Rump" Organization

St. Paul, July 3 (AP)—With Congressman Usher Burdick of North Dakota, manager of Congressman William Lemke's Union party presidential campaign, as its head, a "rump" organization of the National Farmers' Holiday Association today proceeded with plans for its own "national convention" to be held "within 60 days".

The group headed by Burdick yesterday seceded from the organization that had just elected John Bosch of Minnesota as president at its national convention claiming the Holiday Association was under communistic control.

Landon Is Busy

Estes Park, Colo., July 3 (AP)—Speech drafting and political conferences occupied the major portion of Gov. Alf M. Landon's time today—the last full day of his vacation.

Surrounded by his campaign aides, the Republican presidential nominee faced more work on the acceptance speech which he will deliver July 23 at Topeka.

The presence of Earl H. Taylor, former associate editor of a national farm weekly, indicated Landon may deal with the farm problem in his acceptance address.

A possible hint of his stand came from Senator Robert D. Carey (R-Wyo) who told newsmen after his conference yesterday with the nominee, "Governor Landon agreed that some better form of farm relief than benefit payments to farmers should be found."

The governor planned also to confer today with W. R. Bell, New York, chairman of the Republican Finance Committee.

Seriously Injured In Fall from Bank

Burton Shultis, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Shultis of Stony Hollow, is at the Kingston Hospital, suffering from a fractured skull and other injuries, sustained when he fell near his home about 6 o'clock Thursday evening. He was reported to be in a serious condition this morning. Dr. John B. Krom is attending him.

Young Burton and another lad were playing on the railroad embankment across the road from the Shultis home. Burton was standing on a rock near the top of the embankment when in some manner the rock loosened and he was thrown down the bank. The rocks loosened by his fall tumbled down on him inflicting severe injuries about the head and face. He suffered a deep gash on the head, a cut on the cheek and ear and head injuries.

Taken to the Kingston Hospital he was attended by Drs. Krom, Bush and Snyder during the night.

Goes Into Seclusion.

Jersey City, N. J., July 3 (AP)—Mrs. Marron Cooper Hewitt, under $3,500 bail on charges of being a fugitive and attempting suicide, went into seclusion today, after an unexpected departure from Medical Center Hospital. Mrs. Hewitt, who has been accused of Mayhem in California in connection with an alleged sterilization operation on her heiress daughter, Ann Cooper Hewitt, discharged as a patient left the capital last night under circumstances almost as mysterious as those which characterized her entrance last February when police said she was suffering from an overdose of a sleeping powder.

Hundreds Flee Wild Guadalupe River in Southern Texas Today

Cuero, Tex., July 3 (AP)—Hundreds of lowland people, warned by disaster upstream, fled from the muddy waters of the notorious Guadalupe river today and gave way to its ruinous spread over the coastal country of south Texas.

Damage to property and to crops nearly ready for harvest mounted above $3,000,000. Twenty-three persons are known dead.

The emergency was most acute between here and Victoria, a city of 11,000 where the lowlands appeared certain to be flooded. As the crest passed here last night 25,000 farming acres were inundated and 40 negro homes were evacuated. Motorboats carried the refugees to safety.

The floods' force was expected to diminish as the water spread out over lowlands near the coast.

After two days of destruction over several counties the tiny creeks that wrought the first ruin and all larger streams but the Guadalupe were back to normal or had receded at least below dangerous levels.

Crippled communication lines carried appeals for aid from many stricken sections. In the Gonzales region two families were reported missing. The century-old community of Leesville was a scene of desolation and waste. Its citizens were chased to uplands and trees as skies dumped between 18 and 20 inches of rain in a brief period.

The old settlement was almost foodless and its water supply was polluted. Drowned livestock were strewn in the roads and fields and houses were silt-filled and muddy.

The cemetery was practically washed away.

Three days of devastating floods in the Cuero section and in the region a few miles south of the state capital, at Austin, brought damage to property and crops to an estimated $3,000,000.

Definite reckoning of the total damage was not possible immediately, but the Cuero Record estimated damage in this section alone would be near $1,000,000. Loss of livestock was heavy and crops were total losses.

County Judge Willis Ellison estimated the Guadalupe's rampage cost the Gonzales county section at least $1,000,000. C. C. Wade of San Marcos, farm loan agency representative, estimated more than $500,000 damage was borne by the eastern half of Hays county.

BOY IS RELIEVED OF RING AT PHILADELPHIA HOSPITAL

Philadelphia, July 3 (AP).—Eight-year-old Robert Francis Diiger was back home today in Palisade, N. J., after surgeons at the Graduate Hospital fished a notebook ring from his stomach.

Robert, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Diiger, swallowed the ring, an inch in diameter, last month. Macaroni-like flexible forceps, devised by the bronchoscopic staff at the hospital, were used to withdraw the ring. A biplane fluoroscope, which gives a three dimension X-ray picture, aided the surgeons in attaching the forceps.

"Thomas A. Feeney" To Sail Tuesday

The latest addition to the fleet of tugs operated by the Thomas A. Feeney Corporation, the "Thomas A. Feeney," will be placed in commission next Tuesday for work on the barge canal. Work is being rushed to complete the few minor details that as yet have not been placed in position, and then a trial run will be made to ascertain just what the new boat will do.

The "Thomas A. Feeney" is 81 feet long with a 20 foot beam, and is powered with a 450 horsepower, six-cylinder Diesel engine, weighing 32 tons. It carries 9,000 gallons of fuel oil and 400 gallons of fresh water. A capacity crew will consist of seven men, with accommodations for eight, and each crew room has ample space with plenty of ventilation. The galley is equipped with an up-to-date electric refrigerator, oil-burning range, lavatory and plenty of closet room. One corner of the tug has been rebuilt into a shower bath, which is operated by compressed air borrowed from the air compressor, used to start the engine.

When the "Thomas A. Feeney" is placed in operation, it will be one of the four largest and most powerful tug boats on the canal. Originally this tug was known as "Socony No. 6" and was run by steam power, but it has been entirely rebuilt, repainted with the red, black and gold of the Thomas A. Feeney Corp., and will now take its place at the head of the local concern's fleet of tug-boats.

During his absence from the city union services will be held in the Presbyterian Church, commencing Sunday morning with sermons by the Rev. Fred H. Deming, pastor of the Methodist Church. During the month of August the union services will be held in the Methodist Church.

Insurance Officials Predict Heavy Toll

Hartford, Conn., July 3 (AP).—Statisticians of the Travelers Insurance Company predicted today that the July 4th accidental deaths and injuries probably will mark an all-year high for 1936.

The week-end is expected to be the worst from an accident standpoint since 1931. The experts expect 300 highway fatalities and approximately 150 drownings.

Fireworks, while not regarded now as a prolific cause of death on the Fourth, will result in several thousand injuries and in some of these, where tetanus results, the actual fatalities will not be recorded until two or three weeks later, the statisticians said.

The highest holiday death toll in recent years was recorded in 1931, when the Fourth also fell on a Saturday. In that year, 483 persons were killed by accidents over the week-end.

Bette Davis in Row With Her Producers

Hollywood, Calif., July 3 (AP)—Indignant Bette Davis and adamant Warner Brothers Studio squared away today for a new version of the old combat—Star vs. Producer.

A contract which runs for five years and pays Miss Davis an estimated $2,000 a week, is the admitted cause of the squabble. Strained by the actress' demand last February 1 for a "new deal," diplomatic relations reached the breaking point when she failed to report for work in a new picture.

"There are certain things I'm entitled to, and I'm darned well going to get them—or else," fired Bette in an ultimatum. "I won't go back to work as things stand."

Asserting Miss Davis refused an acting assignment unless her "exorbitant salary demands" were met, Jack L. Warner, vice-president, declared "we intend to make her live up to her obligation to the studio."

The Farm Corner

Weekly Farm Paper Review

THE BEST IDEAS FROM THE BEST FARM PAPERS

By WILLARD BOLTE

WILLARD BOLTE

Michigan Farmer brings us these practical rules for the successful growing of soybeans for a grain crop: (1) Select good soil and prepare the seedbed as you would for corn. (2) Plant in rows 21 inches apart, using a grain drill. (3) Plant from 1 to 1½ inches deep, using a bushel of seed per acre. (4) Harrow or rotary-hoe about two days after planting. When 2 to 3 inches high harrow again—on the afternoon of a dry day when the plants are tough. Do it again 5 to 7 days later. If weeds persist the rotary can safely be used until the beans are 6 to 8 inches high. Give regular row cultivation two or three times as required. (5) The combine is the best machine for harvesting, as it can be used when the beans are hard and dry. If they must be harvested with a binder, cut when the beans are in the hard dough stage and shock in small straight shocks. If threshed beans contain more than 16% moisture it is necessary to spread them out to dry, turning them each day with a scoop.

Growers of cannery peas face a serious loss from cracked seed when sowing with a force-feed drill. The New York Experiment Station reports that this trouble can be almost entirely overcome by adding 1½ ounces of powdered graphite to each bushel of seed peas—the graphite overcoming the friction of the crinkled seed and causing it to feed in an even flow.—Ohio Farmer.

The University of Wisconsin is strongly in favor of pasturing off the nurse crop—and for several excellent reasons. The stock will tramp down the loose soil, thus providing the clover seedlings with much better connection with the soil moisture. They will scatter fertilizer—permit the seedlings to get the all-important sunlight—and prevent the nurse crop from lodging and smothering the clover. The university recommends turning in from three to five head of stock about 10 to 12 days before the grain heads out—thus pasturing it off in a hurry. For three years handrunning they have started excellent stands of alfalfa at Madison by this method. The plan works.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Here is another condensed item for your scrapbook. Pennsylvania Farmer gives us these standardized directions for the use of the three principal materials commonly used to treat seed potatoes. CORROSIVE SUBLIMATE: Very poisonous and eats metal. Dissolve one pound in 120 gallons of water—heat to 124 to 126 degrees—dip uncut seed potatoes in hot solution for 2½ to 4 minutes. YELLOW OXIDE OF MERCURY: Add one pound to 15 gallons of water. Place uncut seed potatoes in wire baskets—stir the solution vigorously—plunge basket of potatoes into it three times—and set on a drainboard to drain back into the vat. These treated potatoes are poisonous. FORMALDEHDYE: Use one gallon of 40% formaldehyde to 120 gallons of water—heat to 124 to 126 degrees—place uncut seed potatoes in crates or wire baskets and hold them under the surface for three minutes—then cover the treated potatoes with canvas or other tight cloth for an hour to hold fumes in contact with the seed.

The North Dakota Experiment Station is inclined to doubt the commercial importance of green pasture for raising turkeys. In an experiment conducted last year a flock of poults of the same age and breeding was divided into three lots and fed the same ration. One lot ran on rape—one on alfalfa—and the third on ground so bare that the turkeys could not get a single blade of fresh green feed. Unfortunately the percentage of males and females in the three lots was not equalized, hence the results are not conclusive. But the feed consumption, rate of growth, and general health were so close together that there was little if any advantage in the pasture. At least the test demonstrated that turkeys can be successfully and profitably raised without pasture.—Turkey World.

The time to pick out your gilts for next year is while they are still in the farrowing pen with the sow. Save them from your best sows—and mark the best gilts from the best litters with an ear notch before they are moved to pasture and you lose track of their breeding. Raising the general level of a breeding herd is comparatively simple if only the best and biggest gilts are kept.—Missouri Ruralist.

I am including this particular item from Successful Farming for the benefit of the thousands of 4-H boys and girls who read this column. Last year a farm boy living near New Knoxville, Ohio, made a net income of $570.13 from 224 Leghorn hens—and he did it without any special advantages. But he followed mighty good poultry practices. His hens were kept cool in summer and warm in winter by using straw lofts and insulating the walls of his hen houses. They were fed an all-mash ration and were handled to get maximum production in the fall and winter months and less production in the spring, when egg prices are lowest. Lowest price for eggs was 18½c, received in March—and highest was 33c, in November.

Stable manure has certain advantages over commercial fertilizer—largely due to its ability to loosen the soil and add humus to act as a sponge in holding water. If stable manure is not available it can easily be manufactured by following these directions from Missouri University. Build a pile of straw in layers—and on each layer sprinkle a mixture of 65 lbs. of ammonium sulfate, 60 lbs. of ground limestone, and 25 lbs. of superphosphate to the ton of straw. Build the pile four or five feet high and keep it as wet as possible to facilitate rotting. A ton of straw should produce three tons of manure.—Indiana Farmer's Guide.

Codling moth conditions vary from year to year and from orchard to orchard. For this reason a multitude of fruit growers have adopted the practice of using moth traps to tell them exactly when to spray. A Colorado correspondent of Capper's Farmer reduced his infestation from 75% to about 5% in three years by installing a few traps in the upper part of trees in various parts of his orchard. His traps consist of quart glass jars—suspended by a rope over a pulley so that he can lower them easily for inspection. They are partly filled with a fermented mixture of 5% cooking molasses in water. Each morning he lowers every trap and pours the bait through a screen to screen out the insects for counting. When the daily moth catch reaches a peak he gets out his spray rig.

SMART "SHIRWAISTER" IS SLIMMING AND SMART — SAYS MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9922

9922

Speaking of slim silhouettes, have you ever noticed that the frocks in which you feel more slender actually make you look slimmer? So even if your figure is overweight, you can subtract pounds from your appearance with this animated shirtwaist frock—a debonair sports model which will keep you cool on the warmest days, and smartly conceal any tell-tale weight. Note especially the clever fullness of the simple bodice; note the pleated sleeves, action back, and unusual, rounded revers—every detail is most flattering! You'll like this style in narrow-stripe seersucker, or a printed percale with matching buttons. The accompanying Marian Martin Diagrammed Sew Chart explains each step of the simple pattern.

Pattern 9922 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 3⅜ yards 36 inch fabric.

HARM OF TACTLESS TALK

Nobody likes to talk to Olga! And no wonder! Listen to her appalling, tactless remarks:

"Why did you buy such a broad-brimmed hat?" she blurts out to Mrs. Hall, meeting the Halls walking in the park. "Makes your face look so heavy."

Over at the Miller's she inquires: "Heard from your brother lately?" The brother who's left wife and family in the lurch. Of course, Mrs. Miller loves to discuss that!

Young Sally Gates bakes a soggy cake for her party, and Olga says: "What makes this cake taste so funny?"

Malicious? Not at all. Olga is just one of those child-minded people who voice right out loud everything that comes up in their minds. She never thinks of the effect on the other fellow.

We're not all such tactless talkers as Olga. But what a boost we'd give our social stock if we could always say the winning word, fill awkward pauses.

"The Newton's are having such a pleasant vacation this year," and "Have you seen little Pete learning to walk on stilts?" and "Jane's pink organza was simply lovely at the dance last night"—these are all light, agreeable things to say and hear.

Win your way with good talk. Our 40-page booklet, IMPROVING YOUR CONVERSATION, tells how to build up vocabulary, sharpen wits, develop tact, poise, assurance, readiness. A treasure for the tongue-tied!

Send 15c for our booklet, Improving Your Conversation, to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Institute, 103 West 19th street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your Name, Address, and the Name of Booklet.

"Lots of Work."

Albany, N. Y., July 3 (AP)—Governor Herbert H. Lehman looked forward to "lots of work" today instead of his customary vacation. The governor told a press conference "many things" would keep him occupied at his desk here until the fall campaign opens. He said he expected to get away week-ends to his home in Westchester county.

More Pigs Last Spring.

Albany, N. Y., July 3 (AP)—The State Department of Agriculture reported today that "in response to the higher price of pork prevailing during the last year and a half," New York state farmers raised more pigs last spring than during the previous year. The department reported 135,000 pigs raised in the state last year. In 1934 there were 117,000 raised.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By CLAUDE E. JAGOER

New York, July 3 (AP).—Traders reached for industrials here and there in the stock market today, and also showed a liking for senior issues of power companies.

Elsewhere, pre-holiday caution, with a tendency to refrain from new commitments over the long week-end, left prices moving in a shallow channel.

Motors were well taken, although most advances were not wide. Several thousand-share blocks of General Motors changed hands at advances of around a point.

Issues adding major fractions to more than 2 points included Johns Manville, du Pont, Westinghouse, Briggs, Electric Power & Light Preferred issues, Public Service 7 Per Cent Preferred, Underwood Elliott Fisher, Standard Gas Preferred and Norfolk & Western.

The Volatile Homestake Mining lost some 13, and Corn Products Refining, ex-dividend, more than 2. Checker Cab, with the first sale in several weeks, was down about 7 points.

OUT OF COURT SETTLEMENT FAILS IN HELEN HAYES SUIT

Chicago, July 3 (AP).—Efforts to reach an out of court settlement of a $100,000 alienation of affections suit filed by Carol Frink, drama critic, against Helen Hayes, one of the reigning actresses of the American theatre, failed today.

Miss Frink, of Chicago, charged that the petite star of stage and screen, stole the love of Charles MacArthur, noted playwright, who married the dramatic critic in 1920 when both were reporters on a Chicago newspaper. They were divorced in 1926, and two years later MacArthur married Miss Hayes.

Called suddenly into conference after Miss Frink took the stand today, the principals and their attorneys engaged in earnest convention for nearly a half hour, while a crowded court room peered, giggled and waited for a resumption of the testimony that has brought out the S. R. O. sign since the trial opened Wednesday.

"No offer was made," said Attorney Sam Golan, who represents Miss Frink, as he emerged from the conference.

"We won't give them a cent," asserted Attorney Jay Fred Reeve, who is defending Miss Hayes.

Snyder, agents of the New York State Pharmacist Association, called at police headquarters yesterday and enlisted the aid of the police in staging a raid on various gas stations and arresting several men on charges of violating Section 1747-a of the state penal code. Crisis From Japanese Smuggling Foreseen By Diplomats In Nanking

By C. Y. McDANIEL
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Nanking (AP)—Continued refusal by Japan to prevent her nationals from smuggling manufactured goods and raw materials into China and the consequent enforcement by China's central authorities of drastic preventive measures, is hurrying Sino-Japanese relations toward a crisis of the gravest nature, in the opinion of international authorities at the Chinese capital.

The highest Chinese authorities at Nanking admit unofficially that the complications of the north China situation render it impossible for China to prevent the smuggling of merchandise into Hopeh and Chahar by Japanese and Koreans.

Nanking further appreciates the difficulty of keeping these illicitly imported goods from penetrating into the hinterland as long as Japanese troops are in virtual control of the Hopeh termini of railroads and highways.

Yellow River Is Deadline

The Chinese national authorities, however, are determined to enforce their special anti-smuggling regulations south of the Yellow River, and to use military and police force against persons suspected of transporting contraband, whatever their nationality.

The Japanese embassy has not protested against the arrest of Japanese nationals caught conveying smuggled goods to potential markets in north Kiangsu province, for the time being remaining content to repatriate Japanese turned over to the Japanese consulates concerned.

Some time ago the embassy expressed fears that use of armed force against smugglers might lead to serious incidents. Just such a one developed June 22 when a Chinese customs cutter fired on a steamer of Japanese register in the gulf of Chihli.

Japanese goods, smuggled into North China and piled at a railway station for shipment, duty free, into Tientsin, are guarded by a Japanese soldier whose care-free laugh indicates little fear of interference with the transaction.

Revival in some form of the anti-Japanese boycott is another development which Japanese authorities in China foresee as a possible result of the situation. Such a result, state Japanese spokesmen, could cause only grave consequences.

New Markets At Stake

Since the cessation of the 1931 boycott, merchandise bearing the "made-in-Japan" label has found its way to some of China's principal markets. Cotton and artificial silk are to be found on the shelves of all leading stores in Nanking. Radio sets and parts are in use in thousands of homes.

The success of Japanese factories in turning out automobile tires which look like well-known American and European brands but which cost about half as much, had an officially muffled echo in Nanking recently when the capital's only bus company signed a contract with a Japanese concern to supply tires for the whole fleet of busses which provide transportation for Nanking's million inhabitants.

In time of emergency these Japanese-tired busses would be commandeered to transport troops and war supplies.

Religious Revival Pedicted by Gates

Just as a heroic people signed and defended the Declaration of Independence in 1776, so now there is a need for similar action in creating a "declaration of dependence," among men is the opinion of Dr. Goodrich Gates, who spoke to members of the Kiwanis Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel Thursday noon.

The guest speaker followed Paul Zucca, club delegate to the national convention at Washington, D. C., Mr. Zucca having set the pace and temper of the luncheon meeting with remarks concerning the need for a "toning up of morale." The entire convention, according to the delegate, was dedicated to three problems, economical simplified government, unemployment and the need for a religious awakening. Comparisons were drawn during the tenure of the convention which purported to show that a saner sense of the true values of life were necessary if this nation were to progress.

Dr. Gates, admitted in opening that Mr. Zucca had stolen some of his "thunder" but then proceeded to give a well constructed and timely address on the religious phases in connection with national problems facing the country today. "People today are in somewhat of a rut, as they have been before in previous depressions or 'hard times'," said the speaker, "and I know of two solutions to the problem. One of them is war which jars the people into action but which always leaves greater difficulties to solve after its termination; and the other is a religious revival."

The minister did not favor the old revival methods but rather a sincere attitude of thought and a strengthening of morale. He recalled that history showed that with previous depressions people flocked to the churches and religion, but opined that what had happened before was not happening during the present depression in the large sense, there being no great migration to the churches. "This I take to be a good sign", he continued, "because it is possible that those returned to the churches in the past were not really sincere. Nevertheless indications are that within the near future there will be a new religious revival, different from the others, which will bring the people back to the churches because of sincerity of attitude."

The speaker said he believed the revival would begin with the ministers, who had need of "that added spark in their work." He said it was all too easy for a minister to slip into the role of a "professional" because of the many routine duties confronting them, and there were signs that the "added spark" sometimes dimmed would burst forth anew.

Dr. Gates called upon the club members to tone up their morale and accept and live a more idealistic and religious life in a sincere manner. He called atention to the fact that every great and worthwhile effort in this world was begun by a single individual and that individuality was a great thing. Concluding he said, "Perhaps you cannot be one of the great ornate flag poles of mankind, but when your life draws to a close it is within your power to look up at your flagpole and say, 'I flew the right colors'."

Judge Joseph M. Fowler invited the club to attend a luncheon at Camp Happyland, Red Cross Christmas Seal Camp, to see what is being done with the seal sale monies. The invitation was accepted, the date to be set later.

Abe Jansen invited Kiwanians to visit the garden party at his New Paltz estate, sponsored by the church, on next Wednesday.

Rogers' Decision Due Early Next Week

Riverhead, N. Y., July 3 (AP)—The suit of Mrs. Pauline V. Rogers, widow of Col. Henry Huddleston Rogers, which, if successful, would give her several million dollars outright instead of a $120,000 annual income, was under consideration of Surrogate Robert S. Pelletreau today.

Pelletreau indicated, at the close of testimony late yesterday, he would return a decision early next week in the widow's attempt to regain a dower right in the estate of the Standard Oil magnate.

She accused Colonel Rogers' personal attorney, Adrian H. Larkin, of obtaining her signature to a waiver of her dower right on January 13, 1934. Colonel Rogers died July 25, 1935.

The waiver was signed, she contended, without her knowing the import of the document and while she was under the influence of narcotics to ease the pain of injuries in an automobile accident.

Larkin denied Mrs. Rogers' charge.

Madrid Gets Big Sports Palace for Native Game

Madrid.—A huge sports palace has been dedicated to the Basque sport of pelota, or jai-alai, in Madrid.

It occupies the site where stood the palatial residence of the marquis of Manzanedo. A group of financiers, in combination with the Sociedad Pelotaria de Remonte, composed of Spain's leading pelota players, purchased the site, razed the palace, and constructed the beautiful "fronton," or court, representing an expenditure of approximately $850,000. It is known as the Fronton Recoletos and because it will feature the leading pelota players it will be the No. 1 court of the world.

Pelota is widely played in South America, Mexico, Cuba, Italy, Egypt, Shanghai, and Brussels. It is popular in Spain, especially in the north, where it is regarded as the regional sport.

If California's average crop of oranges and lemons were shipped in one train, the train would have to be 403 miles long.

AT SUMMER THEATRES

"Personal Appearance", a play in three acts by Lawrence Riley, presented by Robert Elwyn at the Maverick Theatre, Woodstock, last evening with the following cast:

Gladys Kelsey ... Betty MacDonald
Aunt Kate Barnaby ..... Harriott Marshall
Joyce Struthers ..... Katherine Dutcher
Chester Norton (Bud) ..... Duane Mackynne
Mrs. Struthers (Addie) ..... Velma Royton
Clyde Pelton .... George Makinson
Gene Tuttle ..... Frank Rothe
Johnson ..... Robin Batcheller
Carole Arden .... Phyllis Ellerman
Jessie ..... Betty Sittler

What it takes to make a motion picture actress is pretty thoroughly brought out in the new play that opened at Robert Elwyn's Maverick Theatre last night, a lusty, ribald tale of a gutter girl who skyrocketed to prominence in the cinema. One of Broadway's pet hits that had a long and successful run in New York, the play is a model in risque dialogue, startling situations and a broad minded tendency to stress the fact that motion picture ladies who reach the heights often attain prominence through other means than acting ability. The show is a biting satire at Hollywood and was handled with gusto and enjoyment by a Maverick cast which stamped the troupe last night as a group of players of exceptional collective talent.

Phyllis Ellerman, in the role of the temperamental movie queen, Carole Arden, gave a brilliant performance in a part that demanded much subtle shading in order to make it believable. When the play opens, the blond haired siren of the screen is on a personal appearance cruise through various parts of Pennsylvania. With her we find her personal relations manager, Gene Tuttle, her chauffeur and her maid. All are on their way by motor from Scranton to Wilkes-Barre when her foreign made car gasps and expires in front of a Pennsylvania farmhouse. Into the farmhouse storms the movie princess and her retinue to await the arrival of a mechanic from town. Her fame is so well known that most of the occupants in the house recognize her and are quite impressed with her glittering coarseness.

She storms and raves over the delay until the young man who lives there and runs the gas station in front of the house makes his appearance. To put it mildly, the star is what might be called sex conscious and one look at the handsome boy convinces her that there is work to be done. There is one little flaw to halt proceedings. The young man is engaged to a girl in the house. This is soon altered when she discovers he is working on a sound gadget for motion picture cameras. Using that as a basis, she convinces him that he should go to Hollywood with her where her influence will get him into the high places. How certain members of the family plus the help of her personal relations manager manage to keep the boy from going with her is the highlight of the play.

Much of the success of "Personal Appearance" last night was due to the smooth performance of Frank Rothe and Katherine Dutcher. Both these players handled their assignments with a natural ease that helped make the story an enjoyable spectacle to witness. Miss Dutcher has a charming stage manner and her role washed away much of the dirt that found its way into the script. Mr. Rothe, long a favorite of Maverick audiences, lightened up the whole show in the part of the cynical manager of the star and his lines evoked constant laughter. Others who did outstanding work last night were Betty Macdonald, Harriott Marshall, Duane Mackynne and Velma Royton. Those who like their drama spicy and off color will find it unstintingly dished up tonight, Saturday and Sunday at the Maverick. The play's popularity in New York and its expected popularity at Woodstock is fairly adequate proof that the theatre goer finds great satisfaction in the "let yourself go" type of drama where virtue is as uncertain as a candle flame in a draughty room.

The most dangerous place you can be in the ordinary course of existence is in an automobile. The second most dangerous place is in your home. These deductions are made from figures recently released by the National Safety Council, covering the accident record during 1935, when accidents caused more than 100,000 deaths. Automobiles accounted for 37,000 of the total—an all-time high record—and home accidents for around 31,000.

Fairy Beings In 'Mystery Murals' Play Hide-And-Seek With Children

By CHARLES NORMAN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York (AP)—Alfredo Sever, of the expressive gesture and rolling eye, befitting a man born in Milan and who studied art there, lays down the law to his bon-vivant friends in Village restaurants of nights; but by day he dwells in a child's world of fairy tales.

Others might paint abstract works—a daub here, a dash there, and call it "Portrait of My Uncle With a Monocle"—but not Sever. Nevertheless, for the delight of children, he always puts into his canvases something he calls "mysterious."

Like To Discover

"A child," he says, "likes to discover things for himself. 'Oh look at that,' he exclaims when he finds there is a frog, which he didn't see before, squatting behind a rock. If you point these things out to children, they're not as satisfied as when they discover them by themselves."

Inspection of Sever's paints—he is doing a series of huge murals for a children's library—shows each has its "mystery" ingredient. Some have many, as the wall-size "Alice" in which everyone and everything—almost—in Lewis Carroll's classic, from the Red Queen to the doormouse, can be found if you look long enough.

Then They Read

His studio, in a ramshackle house off Washington Square, is astir with life-size characters who have just stepped out of "Treasure Island," "Pinocchio," "Hansel and Gretel," "Little Red Riding Hood," "Jack and the Bean-Stalk" and other stories. Sever always has specialized in children's subjects, he says, seeking through picture to stir up their interest in reading.

"If you show children pictures from a story," he says, "it may lead them to the story itself; but if you tell them a synopsis, that suffices—it's all they want to know."

Alfredo Sever, shown here with his "Hansel and Gretel," seeks to stir children's interest in reading by putting fairy tale characters on canvas.

Sever is 44, Italian, and married. There are no children.

Mild-Mannered Kansas Red Carries Communist Banner

Earl Browder, Communist nominee for President, lashes Roosevelt, Landon, Thomas and Lemnke, impartially

By CHARLES NORMAN.
Associated Press Staff Writer.

New York (AP).—A mild-mannered, soft-spoken family man who goes to the movies whenever possible is the Communist candidate for President of the United States.

At the national convention of his party here, which nominated Earl Browder by acclamation, almost every delegate's tie was red—except Browder's, which was blue, like his eyes. He is a "different" kind of radical, his ancestry in America reaching back to pre-Revolutionary days.

At 45, his hair is a mixture of black and gray. His moustache retains a brownish tinge. Attired in a gray business suit, white shirt, cigar in hand, he talks quietly but with conviction about the role of his party in America, criticizing the Democrats, Republicans, Socialists and the newly-launched Union party unhesitatingly.

Claims 50,000 Followers.

A typewriter, the clothes on his back, a few pieces of furniture represents the property he owns. When he begins his campaign tour, he says the party will supply the necessary funds. He expects to speak in 50 or 60 places.

He has been general secretary of the party since 1930 and estimates its membership, including the Young Communist League, at more than 50,000.

Like Governor Landon, Republican nominee for President, Browder is a Kansan. He was born in Wichita, May 20, 1891. His father was a Populist.

He himself entered the ranks of the Socialist party at the age of 15, breaking away when the left wing split with the right to form the Communist party in September, 1919.

Jailed for Draft Resistance.

He worked with the farm cooperative movement in Kansas during the war, opposed the draft law and was sentenced to prison. The years 1917-20 were spent behind bars, except for such periods as he was out on bail during appeals.

"The United States," he says, "eventually will be reorganized on the basis of a socialistic system which very quickly will develop to full Communism."

Quietly, without raising his voice, and with his only gesture an occasional flick of the ash from his cigar, Browder sets forth his views of the parties in the field and of their platforms:

Ripe Other Platforms.

"The Republican platform is the platform of the Liberty League, Wall street and reaction, with a thin veneer of liberalism intended to take off the sharp edges of contrast with the Democratic administration.

"The Democratic platform does make some definite concessions to the trend among the people to revolt against the rule of monopoly capital," he says, "but it is largely confined to broad generalizations not backed up by specific policies.

"The Lemke (Union) platform is a series of slogans designed to catch the discontented masses while emoodying all the substance of the Republican platform. It is even more dishonest, if that is possible than the Republican platform."

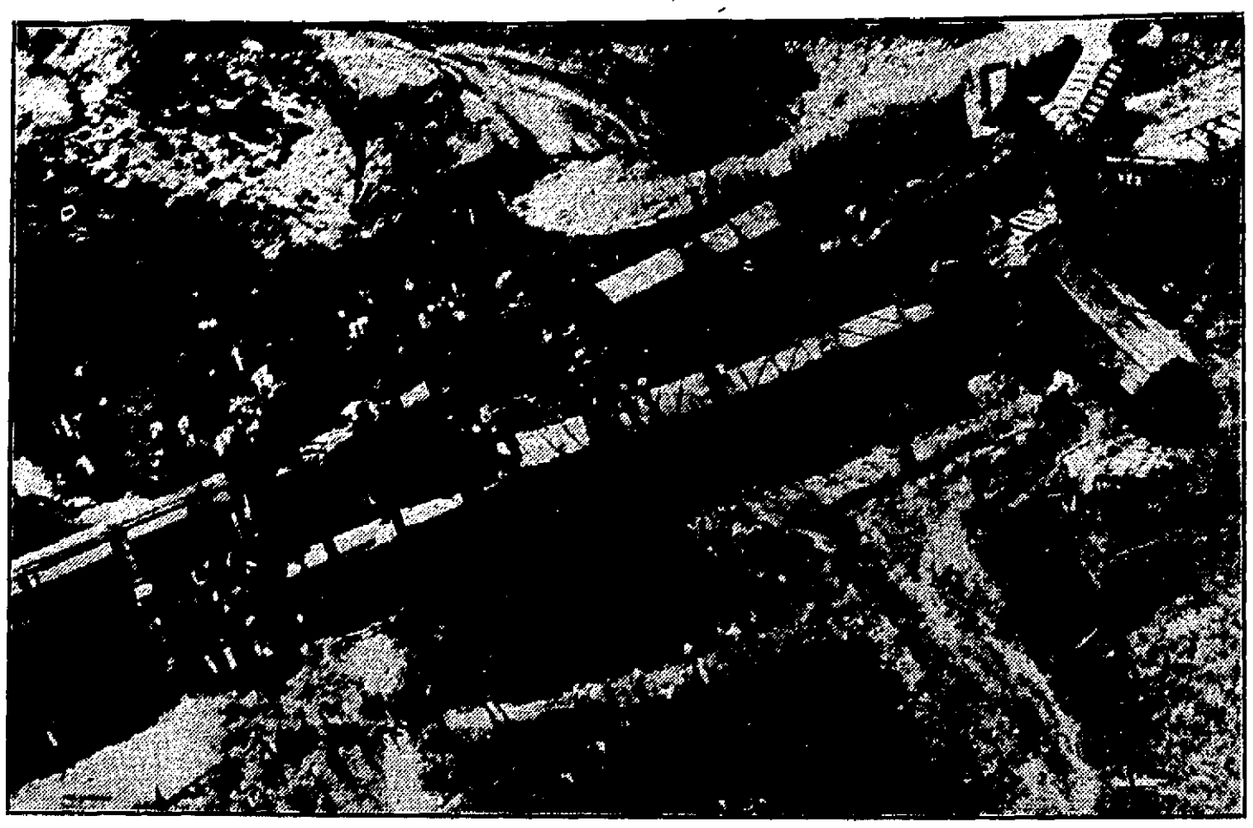

Criticizes Thomas.

"Norman Thomas, in the Socialist platform makes his main attack against Roosevelt, but gives him the highest praise as heading the best administration possible under capitalism. This compromise, coupled with their attempt to make the issue this year a choice between socialism and capitalism, is leading the Socialists into a blind alley."

His own criticism of President Roosevelt, Browder says, springs from a realization that "his failure lies in a weak program with policies that cancel one another"

Browder's special study at present is American history. His wife does educational work inside the Communist movement. They have three sons, ranging in age from 2½ to 9.

DEATH TOLL MOUNTS AS FLOOD SWEEPS SOUTHERN TEXAS

At least 21 were dead and 14 were known to be missing as flood waters swept southern Texas, destroying houses and wrecking a freight train. DROUGHT HITS ROOSEVELT'S FARM

No respecter of persons, the drought has brought ruin to President Roosevelt's 2,500-acre farm near Warm Springs, Ga., causing knee high corn to shrivel up. Otis Mocre, superintendent, is shown among the dwarfed corn. (Associated Press Photo)

DROUGHT SEARS MIDWEST PRAIRIES

Burned to a crisp by a blazing sun after many days without rain, pastures in many parts of the midwest and northwest have become barren and crop prospects are poor. These pictures, taken near Bismarck, N. D., show horses in virtually grassless pasture land, and dust dunes drifting in a roadway. (Associated Press Photos)

The Kingston Daily Freeman,
Kingston, N. Y.
Dear Editor:

I wish, through your paper, to thank the citizens of the city of Kingston for the kind reception they gave us on last Friday, June 26, to Sunday, June 28.

The Civil Service delegates were kept on the jump 24 hours a day, between the ride to Mirror Lake and the old fashioned picnic at the Country Golf Club on Sunday.

The Transportation Committee did a wonderful job, in securing such a large number of private cars and buses for these trips.

Your Honorable Mayor Heiselman has won over all the delegates with his pleasant, sociable and kind manner.

The Civil Service Forum will return to Kingston in 1937.

Will you kindly send me a copy of your paper when this letter appears?

Thanking you, I am
Respectfully yours,
PASQUALE C. PAPE,

Howard Released On $1,500 Bail

Manny Howard, who was the driver of the car which struck Mrs. Rose Parker Wednesday afternoon at Rosendale inflicting fatal injuries and also badly injuring her niece, was released from custody Thursday afternoon when County Judge Frederick G. Traver set bail at $1,500 pending a hearing before Justice Craig at Tillson. Howard was held on a second degree manslaughter charge.

While coming down the station hill at Rosendale his car skidded when he struck a track of oil which had been carried down on the main highway from a side road leading to the station. his car went up on the sidewalk and struck the two pedestrians and Mrs. Parker was struck down and pinned under the car while the little seven-year-old girl was knocked against a guard rail post. Opinions differ as to whether the car was being operated out of gear at the time.

Tuesday, July 7, the Men's Club of the Wurts Street Baptist Church will sponsor a free WPA concert on the lawn of the church from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock, followed by a lawn social and festival. Sinclair to Retire.

Pasadena, Calif., July 3 (AP)—A "complete and final" retirement from politics was announced today by Upton Sinclair, who as Democratic nominee for Governor of California in 1934 sponsored a production-for-use program.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to thank my friends and relatives for their many acts of kindness during the illness and at the time of the death of my husband, Eugene Richard, also for the many beautiful floral offerings.

The Baker Reunion At Woodland Valley

The 20th Baker Reunion was held at the Woodland Valley State Camp, June 27. Contrary to all weather predictions the day was clear and pleasant. Thirty-six members were present. Twenty-one of this number came from Dry Brook with John Vermilyea's school bus, although many were past school age, one having celebrated her 80th birthday last winter. Other members present were the Haynes and O'Keefe families from Kingston, Marks from Huckleberry Hill and Margaretville, and Austins from Vermont and Massachusetts.

Amid smoking campfires the happy family gathered around tables filled with fried chicken and trimmings. After dinner snapshots were taken of the merry crowd and all voted to return to this same camp next year on the last Saturday in June.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—There is a simultaneous if not concerted attempt on the part of the movie producers to improve the variety and quality of the "shorts" offered on your movie programs.

Many of these abbreviated alleged "program brighteners" all too often have been endured rather than enjoyed.

There is that story, for instance, of the Hollywood representative abroad who called upon some dignitary for suggestions about pictures and got this reply:

"Oh, if only you could see to it that those terrible So-and-So shorts are kept out of our theaters!"

Trying Better Music

The individual sufferer can fill in the name of that so-and-so brand of shorts according to his own opinion, and take cheer in the fact that new efforts to break away from routine are being made.

One example is a projected series starring the Hall Johnson negro choir and dealing with a southern negro's concept of Biblical incidents.

This choir, brought to Hollywood for "The Green Pastures," has been busy ever since, supplying background music in several films and appearing in others.

Incidents from American history are being dramatized in a series at another studio, the first of which, "The Song of a Nation," depicts the writing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by Francis Scott Key. Done in color. It has Donald Woods and Claire Dodd in the featured roles.

'Celluloid Columns'

The same company offers another short with a British setting, "Changing of the Guard," starring little Sybil Jason.

There is notable in the forefather of all "short subjects"—the newsreel—a new attempt to speed up the action and to inject feature stories as well as "straight news," with such additions as New York and Hollywood "celluloid columns."

So the time may come, although it is not yet, when the average short will be something more than, as one old vaudevillian commented, an act to clear the house for the next show.

When the melons reach a certain size, he plans to connect them by strings with jars containing fruit flavors. The melons will draw the liquid from the containers, he believes. He expects to have orange, lemon and strawberry melons.

Broadway: "The Case Against Mrs. Ames." Here's the tops in emotional courtroom drama, as good a thriller as one could seek in its revealing story of what happens on the witness stand in a mother-son mixup that sparkles with interest, tenseness and electrifying drama. Madeleine Carroll, in her first starring role, is excellent as the suspected and harassed Mrs. Ames, while George Brent is pretty bewildered at times as the brisk and angry prosecutor. Others in the cast of this Paramount film are Arthur Treacher, Beulah Bondi, Mayo Methot and Edward Brophy. A Walter Wanger production, directed by William Seiter from a story by Arthur Somers Roche.

Kingston: "The Great Ziegfeld." Reckless spender, woman glorifier, extravagant in manner and dress, the history and legendary episodes in the life of Florenz Ziegfeld comes to the Kingston screen all dressed up in a lavish M-G-M film that almost explodes in its very splendor. The only thing the show lacks is interest and it attempts to overcome that slight deficiency by parading a stream of beauties, costumes and color before the eyes of the audience. With a giant cast of stars, plus hundreds of accessory players, the picture dusts off the climactic moments in the life of America's greatest showman since Barnum and carries him through his successes and failures in all its glittering yet artificial magnificence. William Powell, Myrna Loy, Billie Burke, Luise Rainer, Virginia Bruce, Reginald Owen, Nat Pendleton, Ray Bolger and Harriet Hoctor are among the big names in the cast. The show was directed by Robert Z. Leonard and produced by Hunt Stromberg. All seats are reserved for this attraction.

Orpheum: "Captain January" and "Red River Valley." Shirley Temple's best starring effort to date is seen on the Orpheum screen in the main feature now on display, the story of a little girl who is picked up from the sea by an old lighthouse keeper. Although he doesn't adopt the little girl he rescues, he considers her his own until the authorities get busy. There are moments of real beauty in this show, some grand comedy and several tearful episodes. Guy Kibbee, June Lang, and Slim Summerville are in the cast. "Red River Valley" is the other attraction with Gene Autry starred.

Tomorrow

Broadway: "Bullets or Ballots". The "numbers" game, racketeering and sundry big city evils meet sudden death in this explosive yarn of gangsters against the law. Edward G. Robinson, who is the screen's toughest, roughest and meanest looking rowdy, is cast again in the role of a government under cover man who ferrets his way into the den of the racketeers only to lose his life for his bravery. The show is a terrifying study in modern crime and how it is combatted and it also shows how crooks in high places have much to do with the present day trend to the multitudinous rackets that ensnare the gullible. A blazing melodramatic treat, this Robinson picture will not appeal to those who dislike violence on the screen but it is nevertheless one of the swiftest moving plays to be shown locally in some time. An impressive cast of players supports the star. Among them are Joan Blondell as a night club hostess, Barton MacLane, Humphrey Bogart, Frank McHugh, Richard Purcell, George E. Stone and Henry King. A Warner Brothers production directed by William Keighley.

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: Same.

WATCH THE BAROMETER FOR MISCHIEF PERIODS

Spartanburg, S. C. (AP)—The barometer is an accurate forecaster of little Johnny's—or Mary's—conduct, according to a group of local school teachers who have checked their pupils.

"When winds are blowing from the east, cloudy weather prevails and the atmospheric pressure decreases—look out! Children are more inclined to misbehave," says Teacher L. R. Bull.

On several succeeding days when these conditions prevailed, the teachers say their charges were much more unruly than usual.

"I guess it's because that, with less pressure on their bodies, children have more opportunity to rid themselves of meanness," Bull comments.

Fred Perry Smashes Von Cramm in Straight Sets For English Title

Wimbledon, Eng., —uly 3 (AP)—Fred Perry won the all-England tennis championship today for the third straight year. He overwhelmed Germany's Baron Gottfried von Cramm, 6-1, 6-1, 6-0 in the final.

Perry and von Cramm met in the final last year when the sparkling Briton downed the German in straight sets, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

Thus, Perry became the first player in more than a score of years to win the championship three years in a row.

Immediately after the match von Cramm announced he had torn a muscle in his thigh in his first service in the match. The German asked the referee to apologise to the capacity crowd for his poor showing.

Helen Jacobs and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan advanced to the finals of the doubles championship. The American team defeated Joan Ingram and Mrs. Phyllis Mudford King, England, 6-4, 6-3, as Mrs. Fabyan gave a brilliant performance at the net.

Camille Mayfroy of England and Frau Krahwinkel Sperling of Germany and Denmark defeated Andrew Martin-Legeay and Mme. Sylvia Henrotin of France, 7-5, 6-3, in the quarter-finals of the mixed doubles. Their next opponents will be the Americans, Don Budge and Mrs. Fabyan.

Perry operated at the height of his brilliant game as he raced out the opening set, keeping Von Cramm constantly off balance with piercing shots to the corner and making the Baron net repeated backhands.

Von Cramm appeared hypnotised as Perry broke him in the third game and led 2-1 in the second set. The Briton was so completely the master of the situation, without even going to the net, the match rapidly developed into a sad anti-climax. Perry broke Von Cramm again in the fifth game and went 4-1. Perry won the sixth on service with three passing placements that whizzed past the Baron by fully ten feet, and he again scored a service break in the seventh to win the set.

The third and final set lasted exactly 11 minutes. The crowd was mystified as the usually Mercurial-footed Baron permitted Perry to score easy aces and placements, particularly in the final game after Von Cramm had led 40-0.

Officials gathered around Von Cramm after the match and held a short consultation after which it was announced the baron injured his thigh in the first set. The spectators cheered Von Cramm as he left the court dejectedly.

No Jail Visitors on 4th, Sheriff Says

Visiting day at the Ulster county jail had been changed by Sheriff Abram Molyneaux from Saturday to today because of the Fourth of July holiday. The hours today were the usual visiting hours and Saturday no visitors will be admitted to the jail.

While Fourth of July for the majority of people will be a holiday, for the sheriff and his staff it usually presents one of the heaviest days of the year due to the unusually heavy traffic and the customary accidents which call for official investigation.

SPORT SLANTS by Pap

You've got to take your hat off to Promoter Mike Jacobs. He can handle just about any situation.

Mike had planned a little buffet luncheon for the gentlemen of the press the day following the Louis-Schmeling fight. Naturally, the way things were planned, Joe Louis was to be guest of honor. But when Max Schmeling stepped in and spoiled what was to have been the Bomber's party with a few well-placed right-hand punches, he knocked Louis clear out of an invitation to the luncheon. It is extremely doubtful if Joe would have been in the mood to accept had such an invitation been extended. Or that he could have chewed much food with the badly swollen jaw he sported after the battle.

Schmeling appeared at the festive board wearing a pair of smoked glasses to hide the souvenirs he collected in the battle. Between sips of ginger ale Max talked shop.

"I knew I could beat him," said Schmeling. "You see, I came over here for the Louis-Paulino bout and what I saw convinced me that he could be beaten. I had seen the pictures of Louis' fight with Max Baer, and I had an idea that he could be reached with a short right. What I saw with my own eyes in the Paulino fight made me feel certain that I could beat him.

"Louis has a way of sticking out his left so that he is an open target for a right-hand punch. I had him figured out exactly right. Maybe, now, you fellows will not kid me about being a movie fan. The movies helped me figure out how to bomb the Bomber.

Can Louis Hit?

"Can Louis hit hard? Sure! Just take a look at this eye. I had to get in close to land the punch I wanted to get over, so I had to take some punishment. But that was all right—I had planned on that. It got the results. What was a black eye when it meant victory?

"Your Mr. Louis is no 'dead-pan.' He flinched in the third round when I hit him on the cheek. That was what you call the tipoff. And after the eighth I knew I had him. He got tired when I was just beginning to come on. When the other fellow gets tired that is my time. Louis has never fought more than 10 rounds. Often I have fought 15-rounders."

When someone commented on the German fighter's courage in climbing into the ring and tossing right-handers at the supposedly invincible Louis, Max chuckled.

"Why should I have been scared? Or why should any professional fighter be scared? A fighter who gets scared should be in some other business—not fighting!"

Heart Set on Title

The German has his heart set on becoming the first heavyweight champion to regain the title. He insists the possibility of earning the title bout with Braddock and not the opportunity of picking up a fair-sized purse was his motive for coming over and fighting Louis.

"I have plenty of money—at least as much as I need to live in comfort," said Max. "It is because I am filled with the thought of being the first man to regain the championship in the heavyweight division that I come back. That is why I will miss the Olympic games to come back here and train for the Braddock fight. And I think it will be all-right in the Braddock fight, too. No?"

"I might learn something from watching them, no?" he said, winking his good eye.

Mike Jacobs outsmarted himself when he sold the motion picture rights for less than $50,000. They are worth nearer to $100,000. The pictures have turned out to be a gold mine for the producer. Everybody wants to see how Schmeling accomplished the impossible.

Dirt Track Stars to Meet Again in the Pine Plains Oval

Pine Plains, July 3.—Shacamoco Post of the American Legion will hold its next afternoon of automobile races at the new Legion Speedway here on Sunday, July 12. Optimistic as the result of the success of the first two programs, the Post is enthusiastically going ahead with its plans for future race events to be staged on the fast dirt oval every other Sunday throughout the summer and fall. The races have been everything the spectators could ask for, being marked by keen competition, thrills and spills and sensational exhibitions of skillful and daring driving.

On July 12, the biggest field of drivers to appear on the new half mile track since its opening May 31 will be on hand. Among them will be all of the favorites who have participated in the first two shows as well as several new drivers who will be riding on the speedy saucer for the first time. The new talent will include Stan Bobinski of Sicatsburg, N. Y., and Cliff Smullen of Binghamton, both of whom were unable to be present June 28 although they had sent in their entries.

The new speedway will be officially dedicated on Sunday, July 26, when State Legion Commander Edward Schieberling and other American Legion dignitaries will be present. A special 25-mile sweepstakes will be held on that date.

Fred Perry to Enter Forest Hills Classes

Wimbledon, Eng., July 3 (AP).—Fred Perry, seeking today to become the first all-England singles champion for three successive years since the 1910-13 reign of Anthony F. Wilding, told the Associated Press today that he expects to leave for New York immediately after participating in the Davis Cup challenge round.

"I want another smack at that American title," said the winged-footed Briton who won the U. S. crown in 1933 and 1934.

He said he is considering living in the United States permanently.

Olympic Outlook

Well-Balanced American Squads Monopolize Olympic Team Honors

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

New York (AP)—America's ability to develop specialists, if not world record-smashers, in every branch of track and field competition is the main reason why this country generally has monopolized Olympic team-scoring honors.

Rival nations, by choice or necessity, narrow the range of their athletic guns. The result is that the U. S. A. bumps into one collection of specially developed athletes after another. Britain, disregarding the field events almost entirely, concentrates on the short or middle distance foot-races. Finland's distance running class is proverbial. Japan's agility in the jumps is paying dividends. The Scandinavian countries, as a group, have produced more and better all-around performers than any other part of the world.

Most cosmopolitan of all Olympic events is the classic marathon. Seven nations have shared the laurel wreath. France, the United States and Finland have had the only repeaters in the long distance race. Paavo Nurmi had hopes of crowning his glorious career with a triumph in the 1932 Olympic marathon, but Nurmi was barred from competition on the eve of the games. Now it appears Japan is concentrating on a bid for the winner's prize at Berlin, but, for the first time, the defending champion probably will set forth on the long jaunt as favorite.

Zabala May Repeat

Juan Carlos Zabala, running for the Argentine, capitalized the results of the most intensive kind of preparation four years ago at Los Angeles. Zabala came to the United States months ahead of time, accompanied by a trainer, to become thoroughly acclimated. He has repeated the process this year by going to Germany well in advance of all other distance runners. This semi-professional procedure has caused some eyebrow lifting in international amateur circles, but strong pressure likely will be brought to bear to prevent a recurrence of the Nurmi debacle.

America has already named its marathon trio, Ellison Brown, Bill McMahon and Johnny Kelley. They will be newcomers to the Olympic grind, but they shape up as the best we can send in quest of the laurel wreath.

Irish hammer-throwers have dominated the Olympics with the exception of 1924, when big Fred Tootell, then a Bowdoin College undergraduate, interrupted the dynasty founded by John Flanagan and carried on by Matt McGrath, Paddy Ryan and Pat O'Callaghan, winner of the last two Olympic titles. Tootell, now the track coach at Rhode Island State, has now founded a dynasty of his own. His pupils, among them Henry Dreyer, Irving Folwartshny and Bill Rowe, are likely to dominate American tryouts as well as the Olympics. Dreyer has surpassed the Olympic record of 179 feet 7⅛ inches set by McGrath in 1912.

BILL McMAHON

JACK TORRANCE

Finland in Decathlon

Unless the U. S. A. turns up another "Jarring Jim" Bausch in the decathlon, all-around honors likely will be out of this country's reach. Finland's favorites, upset by Bausch at Los Angeles, will make another strong bid. Germany has developed a world record performer since 1932 in Hans Sievert, but poor condition may keep him out of competition.

Robert Clark of the Olympic Club, San Francisco, is American champion, but the best-looking prospect developed this year is Glen Morris of Denver. Clyde Coffman, a member of the 1932 team, is making a comeback. Chicago's all-America halfback, John Jacob Berwanger, has great potentialities in all-around competition, but lacks experience.

The hopes for a continuation of American supremacy in the gentle art of heaving the 16-pound shot rest upon a comebac by Jack Torrance, 300-pound product of Louisiana State University. Jack's world record toss of 57 feet 1 inch put him in a class by himself two years ago. He has not come close to that mark since, but he is still the No. 1 man, providing he gets into condition. John Lyman, the Stanford shotputter who rivalled Torrance for a time and has exceeded 54 feet, is not available. Two other Stanford men, Slinger Dunn and Bob Reynolds, can do around 51 feet, as can "Dimmy" Zaitz of Boston College, but this won't be enough to win at Berlin, even if it suffices to make the American team.

Tagging Major League Bases

(By The Associated Press)

Bruce Campbell, one of the grander buys in this baseball business, is another athlete who's fooling the experts in a sports year already dizzy with such goings-on.

Thrice stricken with spinal meningitis, and rated through as a ballplayer less than two months ago because of the dread disease, the Cleveland Indian outfielder is making his third comeback from the illness one of his most impressive.

When he was brought down by the disease last, in early May, physicians feared for his life. Then, when he showed signs of recovering, the diamond "experts" began singing his swan song as a player.

So Bruce came back, and proceeded to show them.

Up from his hospital bed only about three weeks, he already has boosted his batting mark considerably, despite his long absence. He is among the first 20 hitters in the American League, and is giving indications of making this season one of the best of his career.

If there was any lingering doubt about his recovery, he took it apart yesterday. He teed off against St Louis Brown pitching for seven straight hits, as the Tribe came through in both ends of a doubleheader, 14-6 and 4-2. Campbell hammered out a double and five singles in the opener, then added another single his first time up in the nightcap, after which he was removed "for a rest."

The twin win pulled the tribe up to fourth place in the league standings, as the sinking Boston Red Sox sank out of the first division into fifth place by losing their fourth straight to the Yankees, 8-7, for their seventh setback in a row. The Tigers, meantime, held onto second place by belting the White Sox 7-1 behind Schoolbow Rowe's seven-hit pitching, and the Senators took over sole possession of third place with a 4-3 edge over the Athletics.

In the National League, the Cardinals held onto their slim half-game first-place edge by nosing out the Pirates 4-2, with the Gashouse Gang's virtual one-man pitching staff, Dizzy Dean, chalked up his 14th win of the season, while the second-place Cubs were outlasting the Cincinnati Reds 8-6 in 13 innings. The Giants climbed back into the first division through the Reds' setback and their own close finish, 7-6, over the Boston Bees, while the Phillies finally got some pitching—Bucky Walter turning in a four-hit performance — and shut out the Dodgers 5-0.

Yesterday's Results

Canfield defeated the Royal Arcanums at the Fair Grounds by the score of 18-15. Conlon featured with a home run for the Canfield team. Holden and Townrend did the pitching.

The Board of Public Works staged a last inning drive to edge out the Telephone boys at Hasbrouck Park by a 6-5 count. Tom Lewis smacked in the winning run with a nice two bagger. Norton and Pieper were opposing moundsmen. Lewis and Lucas hit three times each to lead the winners at bat. Fisher garnered three hits for the Telcos. Score by innings:

Telcos	0	2	0	2	0	1	0	—	5	12	1
B.P.W.	3	0	0	0	0	2	1	—	6	14	1

The Universals defeated the Headquarters Battery by the lopsided score of 15-3 at the Armory diamond. Heavy hitting by Kiderian and Brown featured the game.

There was a mixup in the AAA schedule and four teams appeared at the Armory to play. The schedule as devised by the AAA read that the DeMolays and Central Hudson were also to play at the Armory. Inasmuch as there are two diamonds at the field the players thought that the schedule was correct but upon arriving at the field Captain Preston informed them that only one diamond could be used. The Church League uses the second one. The result was that the DeMolays and Central Hudsonites played the role of spectators to the Universals-Battery game.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

Washington—LeRoy Haynes, 199, Philadelphia, stopped Tom Williams, 199, New York (5).

Steubenville, Ohio—Fritz Zivic, Pittsburgh, knocked out Lou Jaffa, New York (2) (welterweights—weights unavailable).

Forty-eight hours after the molten metal for a newly designed nickel cast from skillet was poured in Elkhart, Indiana, this spring, the finished article arrived in New York. Not only had it been neatly shaped, but it had undergone several polishing operations which gave it a shining silvery appearance.

Morris Shatters World Decathlon Record in Final Olympic Tryouts

New York, July 3 (AP).—Just when it looked as though the United States was running out of "iron men" for the classic Olympic decathlon, several all individual athletic tests, Pocks Mountain area has turned out a record-breaker, all primed for the world's best at Berlin in August.

Glenn Morris, 24-year-old Denver automobile salesman who shattered the world record with a mark of 7,900 points in the final Olympic tryouts at Milwaukee last Saturday, will rank with the most phenomenal athletes ever developed by this country for all-around competition, if he just starts with Jim Thorpe, great Indian, and includes Harold Osborn and Jim Bausch, the 1932 Olympic champion, but competent observers rate Morris, on the basis of his latest performance, as the greatest decathlon man yet produced.

Bausch has retired and Hans Sievert, the German whose world record was bested by Morris, probably will be out of the Olympics due to injuries.

"Morris combines extraordinary speed with the technique and stamina so essential to sustaining a high average of performance in the ten-event test," said Daniel J. Ferris, veteran athletic authority and national secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union. The comparative figures on the last three world record performances in the decathlon give a vivid idea of Morris' superiority:

Event	Bausch 1932	Sievert 1934	Morris 1936
100 meters	:11 7	:11.1	:10.7
400 meters	54.2	52.2	50.7
1500 meters	5:07	4:59 8	4:40 1
110 m hurdles	:15.2	:15.6	:14.9
Broad jump	22' 5½	24' 6¾	22' 9¾
High jump	5'7	5' 10⅝	6' 3¾
Pole vault	12' 2	11' 5	11' 4
Shot put	50' 2¾	50' 2¾	47' 5¾
Discus	145' 3¾	156' 11¾	141' 3¾
Javelin	202' 1¾	191' 4¾	152' 11¾

Zioncheck Faces His Constituents Today

Seattle, July 3 (AP)—Washington's unpredictable congressman, Marion A. Zioncheck, faced his constituency today for the first time since his eastern encounters with "cops and cockroaches."

His wife arrived by surprise last night, slipping in quietly by plane and immediately secluding herself. She was met at the airport by her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William Nadeau, who took her to the Zioncheck home.

When Zioncheck crossed from Idaho into Washington state last night a band at the Spokane railway station played "The Bear Comes Over The Mountain," but the congressman was in a locked compartment of the train and no one was admitted.

A crowd estimated at 1,500 was disappointed. A group wanted to invite him to enter the Olympics high jump event, for which they said he qualified when he jumped over a seven and a half foot fence at a Maryland sanitarium.

The Post-Intelligencer in a copyrighted story quoted Zioncheck as saying he may run for governor of Washington this fall because he would have charge of all the insane asylums in the state.

"If I were governor," he avowed, "I would have charge of all the insane asylums in the state and I would get rid of a lot of these so-called insanity experts."

The 18th candidate for Zioncheck's office appeared today. The number was believed to be a record. John E. Ballaine, founder of Seward, Alaska, announced his candidacy on a platform of "protecting those in need of protection."

The congressman's mother, Mrs. Frances Zioncheck, was confined in a sanitarium today. She collapsed earlier this week. Attendants said her condition was due to "worry."

2 Men Held at Norwich For Seizing Teacher

Norwich, N. Y., July 3 (AP)—Two men were under arrest on charges of kidnaping and assault today as the aftermath of a mid-night raid on a rooming house here and the spiriting away of a pretty pajama-clad school teacher who planned to be married Saturday.

Warrants sworn to by Floyd Phetteplace, rooming house proprietor, accused Gus Turkett, 36, and Roscoe Coons, both of Middleburg, of carrying off Miss Ora Wager, 25-year-old rural school teacher and bride-to-be of Melvin Morse, 23, a grocery clerk here.

District Attorney Glen Carter said Miss Wager was carried screaming and struggling from the Phetteplace rooming house at midnight Wednesday and taken by Turkett and Coons on a wild, sixty-mile ride to the home of her father in Middleburg. Later, he said, Wager, his daughter and Turkett returned to Norwich by automobile and Turkett was taken into custody. Miss Wager returned to the rooming house.

Coons was apprehended at Cobleskill and returned to the city jail here to await arraignment.

GIANT AIR LINER TO VISIT HERE

A giant 16-passenger, 1000-horsepower Ford Air Liner, piloted by Captain O. M. Goodsell, will arrive today at the Kingston Airport on the Sawkill road and will remain until July 8.

During his stay in Kingston Captain Goodsell will take passengers up on sight seeing trips over Kingston and vicinity for a very nominal price.

The ship that he will bring to Kingston is a Ford make and is an all-metal affair.

WILDE CALLS ATTENTION TO TIRES AS SAFETY FEATURE

A plea for motorists to look to the effectiveness of their own car and equipment as the first and most important contribution to local safety campaigns was made today by Bert Wilde, Goodyear dealer, located at 652 Broadway.

"Safety campaigns are important means of focussing public attention and interest on safety problems, but even the most safety-minded driver is helpless to avoid an accident if his brakes give out or his tires skid on slippery pavements," he said.

"Consequently, to become a truly safe driver a motorist should, first, get 'safety-minded', second, see that his brakes are good and his tires have the traction necessary for a quick stop; third, drive carefully."

He explained his emphasis on brakes and tires by pointing to the number of accidents caused by the inability to stop suddenly.

"If brakes won't hold, the car won't stop," he explained. "Next, it must be remembered that the car touches the ground at only four points—where the four tires meet the road. Therefore, if the tires are smooth, the car will not stop although the brakes hold like bulldogs.

"Furthermore, tire traction must be such as to keep a car from skidding. The blowout is another hazard created by weak and worn-out tires. In the final analysis, the tire is probably the most important point to be checked on the car. Sturdy new tires, engineered for today's driving pace, are probably the best single accident preventative a motorist can adopt as his own personal safety campaign contribution."
